15-YEAR-OLD BOY FED UP ON SOCIETY

Wealthy Youth Prefers $5-a-Week Room to Luxury of Home

BULLETIN NEWARK, N. J., June 2.—(UP)—William W. Theile, 15-year-old son of wealthy William Theile of Mamaroneck, N. Y., who disappeared May 3 and was located in Chicago today, arrived at Newark airport late today. His father and mother met him and drove him quickly away from the airport.

CHICAGO, June 2.—(UP)—William Webster Theile, 15, missing heir who disappeared from his home at Mamaroneck, N. Y., a month ago, was found today living in a $5 a week hotel room on Chicago's north side, the Daily Times said in a copyright story.

Police and private detectives had sought him. A reporter for the newspaper found the youth living under the name "Jay Webster."

"I was fed up on society life and decided to make my own way in the world," the boy, a direct descendant of Daniel Webster, was quoted.

"Now I guess I'll have to go back to breakfast-in-bed and chauffeur-driven autos."

Selling Magazines He had 15 cents in his pocket and holes in his shoes when discovered living with a roommate, Charles J. Fritz, 21, whom he met three weeks ago when he got a job selling magazine subscriptions from door to door.

"I didn't care to have my breakfast brought up to my room every morning by a maid," he said.

"And I got tired of having a chauffeur drive me to the field whenever I competed in an athletic meet."

He was reluctant to return home, the newspaper said, but agreed to the trip when informed his mother was ill and under care of a physician because of grief over his disappearance.

"I was just starting to get by," he said ruefully.

The youthful Horatio Alger was known to his new-found friends as "Bill."

"He seemed to me just a regular fellow," Fritz was quoted.

Just 'Catching On' "We liked the way he bucked right down and went to work. He was still pretty green but he was starting to catch on. He would have said 'Bye'."

The youth, who on some days ate only one 25 cent meal, had lost 10 pounds in the last three weeks.

Ready to return today, he was worried over $2.50 paid in advance for his room rent.

The Vandenberg amendment, proposing a system of bi-partisan state boards to administer relief and making states share the costs, was rejected, 57 to 14, after lively debate which featured the views of three possible Republican presidential nominees—Vandenberg, Sen. William E. Borah of Idaho and Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas.

Although the relief battle attracted major attention, the senate, in approving the bill, provided funds for a score of other federal activities, including social security, rural electrification and Tennessee Valley Authority.

Plan Graduated Sugar Payments

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(UP)—A system of graduated sugar benefit payments in proportion to the size of the farms affected was suggested by President Roosevelt in a letter today to Sen. Joseph C. Mahoney and Rep. Marvin Jones, D. Tex., sponsors of a resolution to continue basic principles of the Jones-Costigan sugar act.

O'Mahoney said he was "in hearty accord" with the president's suggestion and would attempt to work out legislation to carry it out.

Zioncheck's Bride Back; He's Better

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(UP)—Rep. Marion A. Zioncheck, reported as "resting comfortably" at Gallinger hospital, got back his vanished bride today.

His wife, the former Rubye Nix, paid a secret visit to her husband's bedside and then returned to the hiding place which she sought when Zioncheck's pace finally became too much for her.

Though physicians were reticent about the visit, Zioncheck was reported much relieved to see his wife again. Hospital attendants said he was improving under care.

BITTER SENATE BATTLE OPENS OVER TAX BILL

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(UP)—The senate finance committee majority launched the offensive for its compromise corporation and income tax bill today with an assertion that the measure would raise $829,000,000 additional revenue.

With bitter floor controversy, the majority report was submitted by Acting Chairman William H. King, D. Utah, while Republican senators met in caucus to outline the strategy of their fight against the bill.

The Republican caucus broke up after informal discussion of objections to the compromise tax measure, cited as:

1. No tax bill is necessary at this time if the New Deal would cut expenditures.

2. There has not been sufficient time to work out the details of a satisfactory revenue measure.

It was understood the Republicans would vote against the Black substitute which would revive the high reform taxes suggested by the administration. They will oppose the committee compromise, also, on the final vote. No definite decisions were reached at the conference and none was bound as to his vote.

At the same time, a committee minority led by Sen. Hugo L. Black, D. Ala., sought to substitute on the floor the administration's high graduated rates up to

CALIFORNIA'S WAGE LAW NOT AFFECTED

SAN FRANCISCO, June 2.—(UP)—California's minimum wage law for women and minors is not affected by the U. S. supreme court decision, which held the minimum wage law of New York state unconstitutional, Timothy A. Reardon, chairman of the state department of industrial relations, said today.

The California law will be enforced to the letter, Reardon said, and will continue to be enforced until such time as the supreme court declares it unconstitutional.

Reardon's statement came in answer to hundreds of requests from workers, who feared they would lose their jobs or their wages would be slashed, and from employers who were afraid their competitors would take advantage of them through cutting wages.

LATE FLASHES

SLAYS SWEETHEART, SELF DES MOINES, Ia., June 2.—(UP)—Reese Lewis, 26, son of the president of the Iowa State Federation of Labor, died today of self-inflicted wounds received after he shot and killed his attractive childhood sweetheart, Eileen Pratt, 18, in a quarrel over "dates."

FLOOD CONTROL AGREEMENT WASHINGTON, June 2.—(UP)—The senate today accepted a conference agreement on the $320,000,000 omnibus flood control bill. There were no important changes in the bill. The house must also accept the conference agreement.

When the movie moguls prepared to film a story of a model's career, they got the Artists and Models Club of Hollywood to pick a queen of its most pulchritudinous posers. Lynn Bailey, below, tall and dark haired, won the crown and a part in the production.

California To Have 'Progressive Party'

SAN FRANCISCO, June 2.—(UP)—Formation of a third major political party in California through the welding of the minor "Liberal" parties and recruiting of insurgents or malcontents from the Republican and Democratic ranks, was announced today by Alanson E. Sessions, a labor paper editor from Bakersfield.

The nucleus of the party will be formed Sunday, Sessions said, at a state-wide meeting in Bakersfield and political strategy will be directed at gaining state control in a manner similar to that through Upton Sinclair, EPIC standard bearer, took the Democratic citadel in 1934.

Leaders of the movement, who probably will call the party the "Progressive Party" are said to have approached Raymond L. Haight, who received 302,000 votes as the Progressive and Commonwealth Party candidate in 1934, to join the new party and run in opposition to Gov. Frank F. Merriam, if recall petitions succeeded in forcing an election this year.

Leaders of the third party movement have planned the preliminary organization meeting at a time when they will be free from any interference from the recognized leaders of the two established parties, it was pointed out. Both Republican and Democratic leaders will be busy with their national conventions while the groundwork is being laid to defeat them in their own state.

Sessions said the third party would affiliate with the American Commonwealth federation next year, and will take an active part in major national political movements thereafter.

THREATEN REVIVAL OF LINDBERGH CASE

TRENTON, N. J., June 2.—(UP)—Gov. Harold G. Hoffman's enemies threatened a fight reviving the whole Lindbergh kidnapping case today to prevent him from ousting Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, chief of state police since 1921.

The governor sent to the senate for confirmation last night his appointment of Col. Marck G. Kimberling, penitentiary warden and his political and personal friend, to succeed Schwarzkopf.

Schwarzkopf's supporters rallied for a senate fight around a bill, already passed by the assembly, which would continue any state police superintendent in office indefinitely unless a successor nominated by the governor was confirmed by the senate.

THOUSANDS EXPECTED TO ATTEND SANTA ANA GOLDEN JUBILEE OF PROGRESS PROGRAM IN MUNICIPAL BOWL TOMORROW NIGHT

ALL TICKETS to Santa Ana's barbecue dinner, scheduled for tomorrow night at Municipal Bowl, when the city celebrates "50 years of progress," were exhausted today, as arrangements for both dinner and vaudeville programs were practically completed.

That was the announcement today of Rod Bacon and Phil Brown, chief arrangers, who have been working on behalf of and with the Santa Ana service club and councilman committees for the past week.

"What we want particularly brought to the attention of all Santa Ana is that all Santa Ana is welcome at the program," Bacon declared. "If the impression is that you need a ticket to attend the affair, toss that impression aside. No one needs a ticket to enjoy the selected group of vaudeville acts over which Frank Drumm will act as master-of-ceremonies."

"From 8 p.m. on, something will be doing all the time, and whether you have a ticket to the barbecue dinner, or not, you man come out and enjoy the entertainment."

When 1000 tickets to the general public were exhausted Friday, another 1000 were printed and these, too, are gone. Fifteen hundred have been distributed to those who will take part in the program.

LABOR SEIZES WAGE DECISION IN NEW DEMAND

Leaders Renew Fight to Give Congress Power Over Industry

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(UP)—Organized labor seized the supreme court's 5-to-4 denial of states' rights to fix minimum wages and hours for women and children today as an added weapon in demands for a constitutional amendment giving congress powers over industry.

Leaders of the American Federation of Labor, headed by William Green, saw the minority opinion as a basis for their demands. The majority opinion was the fourth severe blow to labor from the court in a little more than a year.

The court knocked out the NRA, Railway Retirement act, the Guffey coal control act, and, yesterday, the New York minimum wage law, all were strongly supported by organized labor.

The court in a split decision two weeks ago held the federal government in the Guffey law could not regulate working conditions of miners and in the New York case held states did not have the power either. Seventeen other states have similar laws. These, however, were not directly involved in the New York case.

The decision brought the controversy over the supreme court to a new high point. Whether the fight for a constitutional amendment would be carried into the coming political campaign remained uncertain.

President Roosevelt has given no direct indication he will raise the issue.

The minority opinion, written by Justice Harlan Stone, was regarded as of special significance. Some saw in it an implied invitation for a constitutional amendment defining congress' power over industry.

Stone intimated that the majority decision, written by Justice Pierce Butler, was based upon "personal economic predilections."

Joining with Stone were Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, Justice Benjamin Cardozo and Justice Louis Brandeis.

The New York case was regarded as politically important because the seven states with similar laws joined in the New York case appeal asserting their state laws will be governed by the court's decision in the New York case.

These seven states include some of the largest and most populous of the country with huge industrial voting areas. They are Ohio, Con-

Drug Store Breakfast For 2 Cents

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UP)—Druggists today offered a breakfast of one egg, two strips of bacon, grits, buttered toast and coffee for two cents. Seven-course dinners were priced at 25 cents each.

The low prices are the result of a year-long war between cafeterias and drug stores with lunch counters.

CRASH IN JURIES ARE FATAL TO R. E. GARSTANG

KNOCKED unconscious in a terrific crash of his automobile and a heavy truck on Coast highway, a mile south of San Onofre, early Friday, Richard E. Garstang, 37, widely-known owner and manager of Main Service garage, 614 North Main, died at 2:15 a.m. today in Santa Ana Valley hospital.

Suffering a basal skull fracture, severe brain injury and fractured left elbow, Garstang never regained consciousness.

As the victim and his friend, Carson E. Lovering, 912 West Second street, were traveling north along the coast route, their car collided with a truck operated by Joe A. Billingsley, San Diego, and belonging to the Truck-Away Freight company of Los Angeles.

It was reported the automobile struck the rear of the truck. Lovering and Billingsley, it was said, escaped with minor injuries.

Dr. Carl Rand, Los Angeles brain specialist appeared here for consultation last night, but declared the brain injury to Garstang was impossible of remedying.

The body was removed to Winbiger's funeral chapel today, where Coroner Earl Abbey and Deputy Bert Casteix will conduct an inquest Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Resident of 608 Grand avenue, Garstang is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Garstang of that address; a son, Richard; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Garstang, and two sisters, Mrs. Helen Murphy of Honolulu and Miss Dorothy Garstang of Santa Ana.

Announcement of funeral services will be made later by the Winbiger mortuary.

CANTON MANIFESTO OVER-SENSATIONAL

SHANGHAI, June 2.—(Wednesday)—(UP)—A manifesto by the southwest political council at Canton, urging Nanking to adopt a stronger policy towards Japan, was interpreted today by Domei, official Japanese news agency, as a virtual declaration of war against Nanking.

Officials here, however, considered the interpretation over-sensational and unwarranted.

The southwest political council's resentment over recent Japanese activities, including the increase of its garrison in the north and alleged encouragement to anti-Chinese activities in Nanking's relations with Canton. But national officials said they did not consider civil war likely for the present, at least.

G-MEN SEARCH FOR 42 'MOONSHINERS'

LOS ANGELES, June 2.—(UP)—Two men were under arrest and 42 others were sought in California today by federal agents on charges of operating a Nevada "moonshine ring" that allegedly sent $2,000,000 worth of illicit liquor to Pacific coast cities.

A Carson City federal grand jury returned indictments against 57 persons in connection with the alleged ring.

Under arrest here so far are Phil Fogert and Delisle Irvin. They were ordered held under $2500 bail. Agents named Fogert the ring's principal "brains."

Warrants for the others are in the hands of deputy U. S. marshals. U. S. Attorney Peirson Hall said it would be "some time before all those under indictment are rounded up."

Illicit liquor was trucked from stills near Las Vegas to Southern California, it was charged.

YOUTH SAYS HE'S LOVERS' LANE SLAYER

Slew Two, Threatened 14 Others, Suspect Tells N. Y. Detectives

ELIZABETHTOWN, N. Y., June 2.—(UP)—A handsome young lifeguard picked up because two state policemen thought he "acted queer" insisted today that he is the New York City Lovers' Lane killer who in 1930 shot two men to death and threatened 14 others in notes signed "3X."

Although police maintained a degree of skepticism, four Queens county officers drove all night to arrive here before he changed his story.

The suspect was Frank Engel, 30, College Point, a district in Queens borough comparatively near the scene of the 1930 slayings. Felix Nowicki, 30, of College Point, was held with him.

State Troopers Elmer Salisbury and Walter Rockburn questioned the two men casually yesterday because the license plate on an old motor car in which they were traveling showed them to be from Queens county and because "we just thought they acted a little queer and we wondered what they were doing in Elizabethtown," Salisbury said.

Surprise Confession Engel surprised both patrolmen by blurted:

"I'm the 3X killer. I did both of them. I want to talk now."

The "3X" killer appeared first on the night of June 13, 1930, in Queens. He slipped up beside the motor car in which Joseph Mozyanski, 39, and 19-year-old Catherine May were parked on a dark road, and without warning shot Mozyanski through the head.

At noon the next day Mozyanski's body and car were found. Miss May, found in a few hours through identification of a bloodstained jacket she had left in the car, told of a man with "mad eyes," but exceedingly gallant, who escorted her to a bus and sent her home after the slaying.

A few days later police and newspapers began receiving letters confessing the slaying and listing 14 prospective victims, all except one designated by cryptic name "Noel Sowley," a young radio mechanic. Five hours after his name was listed, he was shot in a manner identical with that of Mozyanski's slaying.

Miss Betty Ring, daughter of a policeman, told detectives she was with Sowley. The killer took her, too, to a bus.

Five hundred policemen patrolled dark Queens streets for many

HEIR, TIRED OF LUXURY, FOUND SELLING BOOKS

FATHER TALKS WITH SON, WORRYING ABOUT SCHOOLS
MAMARONECK, N. Y., June 2.—(UP)—William Thiele, wealthy Wall street financier, said today his 15-year-old son, William Webster Thiele, missing for a month, has been in Chicago.

"I talked with him by telephone," Thiele said. "He is well and will come home soon. He told me he has been selling magazines."

When Thiele asked the boy if he was prepared to come home, the youth queried:

"If I come back, will I have to go back to the Rye Country Day school?"

"We'll talk about that when you come home," the father replied.

The youth was scheduled to complete his studies at the school this month and he was to enter Hotchkiss school in Connecticut in the fall.

Thiele said he planned to telephone his son again later today before determining whether to go to Chicago to bring him back or let the youth return alone.

The boy disappeared four weeks ago from his Tudor mansion home on Shadow island, near here. The fact did not become generally known until Sunday after police of Mamaroneck and New York reported they could find no trace of him. He had about $40 when he left home.

He was found by the Chicago Times and talked with his father from the newspaper office.

His father had spent thousands of dollars for private detectives in an effort to find him.

Friends of the family said he had been unhappy because his father had refused to give him an automobile for his own use.

CROP LOANS TO BE HALTED ON JUNE 15

The announcement made today by George S. Glenn, regional manager of the Emergency Crop and Feed Loans division of the department of agriculture, that no applications for loans will be accepted after June 15 will have little effect on Orange county farmers. This fact was learned today, when County Adviser Harold Wahlberg announced that only six loans have been made in Orange county and that so far as he knows, there are no prospective applicants in the county at the present time.

The region effected by Mr. Glenn's announcement includes California, Nevada, Utah and Arizona. Maximum loans made to farmers in this area have been $200, it was learned.

BIDS RECEIVED FOR OLIVE BOND ISSUE

Eight bids received today by the county supervisors for the $8000 Olive school district bond issue, were referred to County Auditor W. T. Lambert for classification, the auditor being instructed to report back to the board late today regarding the most favorable bid.

This appeared to be the bid of Redfield, Royce and Company, Los Angeles, which offered a premium of $4.65 on the basis of 3 per cent interest. That was the lowest interest rate offered.

Other bids were: William R. Staats and Company, $55 premium, 2 1/2 per cent interest; Speer, Singer and Company, $1 premium, 3 1/2 per cent interest; Banks, Huntley and Company, $51 premium, 4 per cent interest; First National Bank in Santa Ana, no premium, 4 per cent interest; G. W. Bond and Son, $11 premium, 4 1/2 per cent interest.

Announcing to city council, that, after more thorough consideration, it was decided a children's wading pool for Birch park would not be advisable, the city planning commission last night reiterated its former recommendation that plans be pushed for establishment of a new bandstand there.

The commissioners sent their statement to city council, which filed it. Councilman Ernest Layton, member of the commission, announcing that WPA officials probably would cooperate, as suggested several months ago.

Gripping the hair of a mysterious young woman as she fought furiously, intent on suicide, Pilot Charles W. The veteran aviator seized the woman when, at 1500 feet altitude, he saw her prepare to leap.

The decision closed the present session of the court. The justices put away their robes for a four months vacation. The last two sessions of the court made the past 18 months perhaps the most important in the country's history.

In the period beginning Jan. 7, 1935, when the court outlawed "hot oil" legislation, the court has condemned eight major federal laws, including NRA, AAA, the railroad labor act, the bankruptcy act, Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage, and the Guffey law. It is doubtful that, in any comparative space, it has laid down judicial "law" of such scope and consequence.

42 1/2 per cent on undivided corporate income.

These high reform rates are in the house bill but were rejected by the committee which reported a compromise calling for a 3 per cent increase in present corporate taxes, a 7 1/2 per cent super tax on undivided profits and a one per cent increase in income surtaxes over $6000.

Republican senators have promised to filibuster any restriction of the high reform tax rates in the house bill.

The majority report pointed out that treasury estimates of the yield of compromise bill were only $781,000,000 as compared to the $892,000,000 yield of the house bill and the request of President Roosevelt for $620,000,000 permanent revenue and $517,000,000 temporary revenue over a three-year period.

However, the majority contended, treasury experts did not take into consideration factors which the majority believed would add a total of $78,000,000 to the yield of the compromise, boosting it to $829,000,000.

The report said the finance committee bill would return $747,000,000 in permanent revenue and $82,000,000 in temporary revenue, as compared to $620,000,000 permanent and $517,000,000 temporary for one year in the house bill.

"The finance committee bill is decidedly to the advantage of the government both as to certainty and volume."

Even if the excessively conservative estimates of the treasury are correct, the finance committee bill will return more additional revenue over a five-year period than the house bill.

The report then presented a table to show that, in five years, the house bill would produce $3,295,000,000 compared to $2,427,000,000 for the senate compromise.

"Finally," the majority said, "it may be pointed out that the finance committee bill leads to a stable revenue (by retaining present corporate rates and adding a super tax) while the house bill (which repeals all present rates) leads to an unstable revenue."

The majority report criticized the house bill as harmful to business but admitted that the evils of corporate tax avoidance should be remedied.

"The evil of retention of profits by corporations to protect investors having large incomes, against paying on larger incomes, may be soundly corrected without doing the injustices (in the house bill) and moreover the committee plan contributes the indispensable element of certainty in the general revenue," the majority said.

The committee set down the following table to show the yield of the compromise measure on the basis of treasury estimates, to which the committee would add $78,000,000.

Graduated tax of corporations, $215,000,000.

7 per cent tax on undistributed profits, $217,000,000.

Normal tax on dividends, $90,000,000.

Changing rule as to liquidations, $83,000,000.

Foreigning corporations, $4,000,000.

Strengthening Sec. 102 of existing law, $4,000,000.

Imposing taxes on certain oils, $10,000,000.

Taxing sale of oil leases at 30 per cent, $10,000,000.

Increasing surtax, $50,000,000.

Windfall, $82,000,000.

Grand total, $751,000,000.

LOCAL TEACHER IS CONTRIBUTOR TO GUIDE BOOK

Bringing recognition to Santa Ana and its schools, a volume just issued by the State Department of Education, titled "Teachers' Guide to Child Development in the Intermediate Grades," includes an important chapter contributed by Miss Hubertene Kueneman, supervisor of elementary schools in Santa Ana.

Miss Kueneman's chapter, comprising 35 pages of the 600-page volume, deals with the subject, "Training in Reading Skills." The appended bibliography of books and periodical articles is said to be especially valuable to the teacher who desires to improve in that field.

There are 22 chapters of the volume, which was prepared under direction of the California States Curriculum commission.

TRIAL OF WIFE SLAYER OPENS IN COURT HERE

The murder trial of Natividad Valenzuela, 24, of Delhi, charged with slaying his 17-year-old bride, Lovita, in a drainage ditch, was delayed until the afternoon session when the case was called to day for trial before Superior Judge James L. Allen.

Both District Attorney W. F. Menton and Assistant District Attorney James L. Davis, conducting the prosecution, were occupied with other matters this morning and could not attend the court session.

A large crowd of Mexican residents of the community were on hand as the case was called, eager for a look at the youth who is alleged to have beat his bride to death with an automobile jack, during a quarrel over a dance.

Valenzuela was captured by deputy sheriffs after he had gone to El Paso, Texas, and then returned home, irresistibly drawn back to the scene, he assertedly told the officers.

Now that good old summer is really here, it's going to be pretty tough to get Mr. J. Q. Public interested in politics, Europe, or taxes, with vacation time just around the corner. . . . Yes sir! This is the season when everybody tries to do a Mussolini and find a place in the sun.

About this time of year, a great many people get the itching sole, which can only mean one of two things. . . . The wanderlust, or athlete's foot.

Of course, if you're going to some fashionable mountain resort, it's best to spend a little more and hire a guide. . . . Don't rely too much on your conference.

A further suggestion should be given to those who are victims of the habit of looking under the bed before retiring. . . . Don't sleep in upper berths.

Naturally, it's a relief for the girl who has already made a definite decision where she is going on her vacation, as it takes a lot of weight off her mind. . . . Now, she only has to start taking it off her hips.

Oh, What a Tanning These Girls Will Get!

After strict warning not to expose their dainty skins to the bright, hot sun—because it's so hard to apply makeup over a sun-tan—these four charming movie starlets went out and dared the tanning they're bound to get. They don't seem to be worried about it, either. Left to right, they are Paula Stone, Toby Wing, Suzanne Kaaren, and Dorothy Stone. They were attending a beach party given by Tom Brown at Santa Monica, Cal.

G. O. P. INVADES CLEVELAND TO SET UP 'TENTS'

CLEVELAND, June 2.—(UP)—The Republican party moved its national headquarters to Cleveland today in preparation for the presidential convention opening on June 9.

The city, excited over its first major political convention since 1924, when the Republicans nominated Calvin Coolidge, was decorated with flags, bunting and G. O. P. emblems and hotels welcomed the first of the thousands of committeemen, delegates and newspapermen who will participate in the party convulse.

Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the national committee arrived to take charge of national headquarters in the Builders Exchange building. He was met by Vice-Chairman Ralph E. Williams, who has been in Cleveland for several months; Secretary George Keim, and other officers of the party.

A staff of office workers arrived from Washington and Chicago. Fletcher planned to attend the first preliminary meeting of the convention, scheduled for today in the Terminal club of the Hotel Cleveland.

The committee on arrangements will go into session for a final check on convention plans. From now until opening day, pre-organizational conferences will be held daily. The national committee will meet Wednesday to hear claims of contesting delegates. Challenges have been raised against delegates from 10 states and territories, involving 57 of the 1001 seats in the convention.

Big public auditorium, where all convention sessions will be held, was renovated by the WPA. Workers were busy completing the interior flag decorations.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—(UP)—A charge that Edward J. Margrett, San Francisco area manager for the Townsend movement, was using his funds for personal purposes today was read into the records of the house old age pension investigation.

C. A. Donahue, San Francisco, in an affidavit, charged Margrett was making a "racket" of his position in the $220-a-month-pension movement.

Donahue said that he was employed as manager of Margrett's rug store and that he received $50 weekly salary from Townsend checks and that Margrett then took a $20 "cut" from it.

SEN. DICKINSON IS NOMINATED AGAIN IN IOWA

DES MOINES, Ia., June 2.—(UP)—United States Senator L. J. Dickinson, bitter foe of New Deal farm policies and mentioned as a Republican presidential candidate, appeared to have won re-nomination today.

Dickinson based his campaign on his opposition to the New Deal. He was the particular target of Democrats urging retention of New Deal farm policies.

Incomplete returns from yesterday's primaries gave Dickinson almost a 2 to 1 lead over his closest rival, former Sen. Smith W. Brookhart.

A WORD OF COMFORT
You are not likely to come into touch with God anywhere else unless you find Him in your inner consciousness and discover His presence within your own home.
Merely suffering in silence and leaving your friends and relatives to make what they can of their lives diminishes your respect for your forefathers, your devotion to your beloved in Paradise, your reverence for the lives of the coming generation and your faith in the spiritual future of the race.
You are to draw near to the loving God and then share with those closest to you the conviction which comes to you of the abiding, sustaining, inspiring presence which upholds you.

RAMPAGING INDIANS SLASH OAKS' LEAD

SEATTLE, June 1.—"Dutch" Ruether's Seattle Indians, who have been on the rampage since returning home, proved the undoing of the Oakland Oaks in the week's play, ending Sunday.

The Oaks enjoyed a six-game lead when they invaded the Indians' battle ground, but the Indians took seven of the eight-game series, and are now tied with the Meyermen for the top rung in Pacific Coast league standings.

The Indians won five straight from the Oaks, then lost the nightcap of Saturday's Memorial Day double-header, and wound up by taking both ends of the twin bill Sunday, by scores of 8 to 5, and 16 to 4.

Los Angeles also won two games from the Missions Sunday, by scores of 8 to 4, and 7 to 5. The Seals trimmed San Diego twice, 5 to 3 and 5 to 2, while Sacramento and Portland split, the Solons taking the first encounter, 5 to 0, and losing the windup 2 to 0.

In the first game of the bargain bill, Paul Gregory, on the mound for the Indians, won his tenth game of the season. The only other ten-game winner is his teammate, Lou Koupal.

FARM ADVISOR CIVIL SERVICE TO CLOSE WORK EXAMINATIONS SHEETS JULY 15 ARE ANNOUNCED

Assistant Farm Advisor W. M. Cory today received word from state committee officials that July 15 has been set as the closing date for the filing of work sheets with the County Agricultural Conservation association.

The filing of a work sheet giving the 1935 crops and acreages harvested is the first step a grower takes in preparing an application for a grant allowed for their particular soil conservation practice under the soil conservation act, Mr. Cory said. Unless a work sheet is filed before the closing date announced today, the grower will not be allowed to make an application.

In order to facilitate the filing of work sheets, arrangements have been made to have the various districts in the county file on certain specified dates. On June 4, 5 and 6, growers in the Tustin, Irvine, El Toro and San Juan Capistrano areas will be assisted at the farm advisor's office in filling out work sheets. Mr. Cory announced that a legal description of the property involved is necessary, and urged that tentative applicants come prepared with records of acres harvested, and the yield of the principal soil depleting crop.

JUNIOR HI BOYS HELD FOR THEFTS

Two Willard junior high school boys were under arrest and held at detention home today, following alleged admissions by them they were connected with the burglarizing of Mrs. Viola Gyger's Brown Bird cafe, 1404 South Main street, two weeks ago, in which candy, gum and peanuts were the total loot.

Detective Lieutenant Charles W. Wolford made the arrests yesterday afternoon, following a tip furnished by someone who suspected the boys, one 14, the other 15. Both boys admitted they had eaten part of the loot but both also accused the other of actually poking out the window with a piece of iron and removing the goods. One youth is now on probation, according to Officer Wolford, for burglarizing a service station at Fifth and Flower streets.

U. S. DAVIS CUPPERS TO PLAY IN EUROPE

PHILADELPHIA, June 2.—(UP)—The American Davis Cup squad sails for England tomorrow but the best they will be able to do at Wimbledon, when the cup challenge round is played, will be to sit and watch it.

A fighting, hard-hitting Australian team destroyed America's ninth quest for the cup since it was lifted by France in 1927 by taking the North American zone final here yesterday.

The burden of keeping alive this country's hopes was placed on William Allison, national single champion. But Allison's most valiant efforts failed. He was hopelessly off form.

Jack Crawford clinched the Australian victory when he defeated Allison 4-6, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2. Adrian Quist took Allison into camp Saturday and then combined with Crawford to take Sunday's doubles match from the youthful Californians, Don Budge and Gene Mako. Thus, Australia earned the right to meet the winner of the European zone final for a shot at England, the cup's current custodian, in the challenge round.

The United States Lawn Tennis association announced that Allison, Budge, Mako and Bryan (Bitsy) Grant will sail for England on the liner Washington tomorrow for the All-England championships at Wimbledon.

HOLDS COUNTY RESPONSIBLE FOR INJURIES

An opinion by District Attorney W. F. Menton today advised the county supervisors that the county is liable for compensation in the case of Asa Barnes, Garden Grove, employee of the county road department, injured in an automobile accident May 19 while enroute from the county yard at Fullerton to his "job" near that city.

Menton ruled that Barnes, having reported at the yard and picked up some grader blades to be used on the job, was actually on duty, although not yet actually at the scene of his labors.

Eligibility for compensation insurance in such cases, according to court decisions, depends upon whether the employee was on his way to work or was actually on duty at the time of injury. Injuries received while going to or from employment are not eligible for compensation, it has been held.

Had Barnes been injured while enroute from his home to the

The skeleton meeting will be held for the purpose of permitting local members and visiting Kiwanians to make up attendance.

The club is planning to attend the barbecue and Golden Jubilee lawn party, to be held in the Municipal Bowl, in a body.

Members of the club, who have not already received them, are urged to call at Fred Newcomb's shoe store, and obtain their tickets, according to Dr. Melbourne Mabee, president of the club.

A swoose is a cross between a goose and a swan.

Barnes has not yet filed a claim. He suffered a fracture of the skull and several ribs, it was said. The county carries its own compensation insurance.

HISTORICAL RECORDS SURVEY IS ESTABLISHED IN COUNTY

An Historical Records Survey has lately been established by the federal government for the purpose of "discovering, preserving, and making accessible the basic materials for research in the history of our country." Its main tasks will be:

To secure inventories of the records of state, county, municipal and other local governments, and from them to prepare a master inventory of the public records of the United States which will be deposited in Washington. One or more copies of the inventory of the public records in each county will be deposited in the county, and one or more copies of the inventories of the public records in each state and its subdivisions will be deposited in the state.

To collect information on the existence and general character of collections of historical materials throughout the country. This information will be utilized by the survey in the preparation of a guide to historical collections, and for other public purposes.

To collect and make available information concerning the present housing and care of public records and historical materials, and to ascertain and promote better measures for their preservation and accessibility.

Aimed to encourage and assist the awakening of a public consciousness of the value of the past, and to perpetuate the source materials out of which all authentic history must be built, the Historical Records Survey asks the active cooperation of all groups and individuals of our people.

A staff of trained workers, under the direction of Ted N. Burrell, are at work in Orange County on the survey at the present time.

FORMER FELON BEFORE COURT ON WEDNESDAY

Albert E. Howe, 45, who admitted he is an ex-convict with a long past record, and that his true name is Carl Egbert, who was arrested on complaint of the sheriff's office Saturday, on a charge of failure to report his felony record, will answer to arraignment tomorrow, before Justice Kenneth Morrison.

Howe, resident of Silverado camp, where he has been working, was picked up by Orange police, convicted and sent to jail for a five-day term on a drunk charge. Checking sheriff's office records, Herman Zabel, in charge of the identification bureau, located a record which fit a description of Egbert. Fingerprints taken immediately revealed, according to the officer, that Egbert had allegedly scraped or filed off the skin of his fingers to escape detection. His arrest followed immediately. The record shows Egbert has served in Folsom and San Quentin prisons of California, Kansas State penitentiary and Missouri State penitentiary on various felony charges, chiefly in connection with thefts, or burglaries. Bail was set at $500.

CITY AGREES TO REDUCTION OF DISPOSAL COST

On motion of Councilman Joe Smith, the city fathers last night adopted a resolution by which an agreement is being arranged between the joint outfall sewer district and the Waste Water Disposal company of the Placentia-Fullerton area to reduce cost of using the outfall system to the disposal company. The disposal company has been paying $700 per month for permission to dump salt water from an oil well area, into the system. It asked reduction of rental to $400, arguing it could build a system of its own and save money if the cost were continued at the $700 figure. Council agreed to revision of the contract providing other members of the joint outfall district are agreeable. Total "minimum of 40 miner inches of water allowed, daily, to pass into the system" was changed so far as Santa Ana's agreement is concerned, to "a monthly average of 40 miner inches daily," to permit sending larger quantities of water into the system at any one time so long as the average is not exceeded.

Other commissioners and their terms expirations, are: Mrs. Ruth Forgy and Edward Hall, June 30, 1937, and J. Russell Bruff and Oliver L. Haisell, June 30, 1938.

NEVER FELT BETTER IN HIS LIFE; LAUDS THE NEW GLY-CAS

Mr. Purkey Freed of All Aches and Pains, Kidneys Regulated, Stomach Fine; Now Able to Do His Work with Ease; New Strength and Energy Given Him.

Mr. George W. Purkey, 315 West Fourth Street, Santa Ana, well known real estate dealer who has been a resident of this city for the past twenty years, is among the hundreds of former local sufferers who know to their

Joy the vast difference in results to be had from Gly-Cas' vegetable ingredients compared with the other medicines of the present day. Read what Mr. Purkey said recently in lauding the action of this new remedy to the Gly-Cas Man at the McCoy Drug Store, No. 6, at 108 West Fourth Street, this city:

"Gly-Cas has outstanding merit and will prove itself whenever given an honest trial," said Mr. Purkey. "For many years my stomach had caused me constant suffering. Very few things I ate ever agreed with me. Gas formed in abundance regardless of my diet. I was habitually constipated, had a severe soreness in my right side continually. All medicines I tried failed to give proper action. My kidneys were affected, too, up all hours of the night and my back pained me continually. I became terribly nervous, lost my appetite and I was in such condition that I could only do the lightest of work. It was terribly discouraging to be in my condition and have medicine after medicine fail in my case — but that was the story every time until I began Gly-Cas which performed wonders for me in a week's time.

"I have been taking this new remedy for several weeks now and I am a new man," continued Mr. Purkey. "I never felt better in my life than I do today. My kidneys are now regulated, the aches and pains have left me entirely and I am able to get a full night's natural sleep. I can now eat and enjoy my meals without the least disturbance; gas and bloating has been eliminated and new strength and energy has been given me. Even my bowels have been regulated, am gaining in weight and cannot say too much in praising this valuable new remedy. No wonder so many are praising Gly-Cas — it deserves it all and more, too."

The Gly-Cas Man is daily meeting crowds of local people at the McCoy Drug Co., No. 6, at 108 West Fourth Street, this city, where he is introducing and explaining the action of this valuable new remedy.

FEINTING
WASHINGTON, June 2.—The mystifying Roosevelt technique on the tax bill is not essentially different from his established method. This big fight in the senate is more of a sparring contest with soft gloves than the brawl that it appears to be.

There is no doubt about the sincerity of President Roosevelt's sparring partners. They really believe even his modified house corporation tax plan is foolish and are trying to smash it. But at the same time they also know the heavy-weight champ is merely practicing feinting with them.

The result of the match will be whatever he desires to make it.

ADAMANT?

What perturbs them is the private information they have picked up at the White House, indicating that Mr. Roosevelt really wants the house plan, with some further necessary modifications.

In the private conferences they have been having off and on at the White House, it has developed that Mr. Roosevelt personally considers the corporate earnings distribution idea an excellent campaign issue. For that reason, as they understand it, he is not willing to let the idea drop until next year.

As their only chance to win is for the president to let them win, the only thing they can hope for is that he will change his mind.

EASY

The heavy hand which the champ holds over them is well illustrated by the inside strategy which the Roosevelt leaders have adopted.

At first they intended to offer the house corporation provision from the floor of the senate as an amendment. They thought there was a fair chance it would be adopted.

In that event, the sparring match would be over. The issue would go no further.

But, after all, that house provision is too bad, even for them. Consequently, the treasury has worked out a series of corrective amendments. These will be offered to the senate, if adopted, or not adopted, the issue will go to a committee of senators and representatives who will write the final form of the bill. And these senators and representatives will be selected by Vice President Garner and Speaker Byrnes. If they pick men who will not carry out presidential orders, they will be looking for jobs themselves soon.

It is all so easy, and has been done so often before, that there is really little inside excitement about it, except on the point of whether Mr. Roosevelt will relent.

NOTE—Another feature of the strategic plan is that the leaders will continue to talk about adjourning June 6, and really plan to do it June 9 or 10.

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

DRAMATIZE

The report that at least one Supreme Court Justice will resign before the November elections thrills G.O.P. topnotchers, though they figure it too good to be true. Latest word has been that the conservative Justices were undergoing a stiff health regime so they could hold on until after FDR left the White House.

But a certain member has informed friends that his age and poor health may combine to force him into retirement. Moreover, he feels that the court has withstood assaults on the constitution and that none will succeed in the future. The Republicans are praying that he will step down during the summer, for they feel that a vacancy will personalize and dramatize the constitutional issue. The G.O.P. would headline the demand that President Roosevelt—who would undoubtedly not fill the vacancy until after election—say what type of man he intended to name to the bench. Anti-New Dealers would of course predict the selection of a radical or at least a Frankfurter apostate. They could then wage the home-and-mother-and-flag-and-constitution campaign which they had planned until Mr. Roosevelt outmaneuvered them by appointing all Supreme Court rulings except the NRA decision as final.

COALITION

Although Gerald Smith's offer of a third party presidential nomination on a silver and share-the-wealth platform did not tempt Senator Borah, Huey Long's evangelistic heir has not abandoned hope of being elected by the "Coughlins and his crowd against President Roosevelt."

Mr. Smith has found Doctor Townsend and Father Coughlin's spokesmen receptive to his suggestion of a new party. It would be based on such issues as old age pension along Townsend lines, share-the-wealth schemes and cheap money for farmers as proposed by the Frazier-Lemke bill. The new hero of these groups is Senator Gerald Nye of North Dakota, although it is probable that he will "take a Borah" on them, too.

Lack of a popular figure as a presidential candidate is the only obstacle to formation of a financial third party which might manage the President in a dozen states. Although conservatives abhor the Smith-Townsend-Coughlin heresies, it is understood they would finance the movement if it threatened to defeat Mr. Roosevelt. The money appears to be forthcoming—but not the man on horseback.

CONTROL

Senator Capper's prediction that prohibition will return in ten years does not seem so far-fetched to officials who know the inside story of the liquor interests' persistent violation of the spirit of the law.

The brewers failed to solve the question of cut-throat competition at recent conferences and have fallen into a dog-eat-dog squabble. They are ignoring regulations which prohibit tied-in houses, price rebates and advertising favoritism. Though better behaved, the distillers are cheating and chiseling wherever and whenever they can get away with it. Both groups are lobbying for amendment of stringent laws which they don't obey now. A certain liquor lobbyist was recently disclosed to have received a 1935 salary higher than the President's, which is $75,000 a year. This aroused curiosity as to what service he performed to deserve such reward.

This situation accounts for the President's insistence that congress shift liquor control authority from the treasury to a three-man commission. His aides have informed him that a separate, full-time agency is needed to keep the beer and whiskey boys under control. Otherwise, it may be the beginning of the end of another "noble experiment."

Council Grants Permits To Hang Four Neon Signs

Four permits were granted for erection of neon electric signs in downtown Santa Ana, when city council met last night, the permissions being granted subject to Electrical Inspector W. O. Packard's approval.

Two signs, one 17½ feet long and 16 inches high, reading "The Ice House," and being flat against the building, and the other, 10x40 inches, to be erected on a post and advertise "Liquors," at 1705 North Main, will be erected by George Ezelle and H. E. Mathews. An agreement was entered into between the city and property owner by which no damages will be allowable for moving the second sign back, should the street be widened and the property owner required to move back the sign. Francis H. Silway entered into the agreement.

For the Gilmore Oil company, MacFarlane electric will erect a large sign on its own property at Santa Ana boulevard and Chapman avenue. The sign will have eight five-ampere transformers and be erected on a post in the service station yard. For the Institution of Musical Arts, C. M. Trusty and Sons was granted permission to erect a sign, 15 feet by 30 inches, 700-watt, at 1501 North Main street.

COUNCIL NOTES

Request of T. Wayne Walker, 23, of 595 Eastwood avenue, for permission to drive a taxicab in Santa Ana, was referred to city council last night to its taxicab committee for recommendation.

Request of the Rev. M. L. Brinson, pastor of Johnson chapel, A. M. E. church, 1320 West Second street, for permission to raise funds by solicitation, to pay off a $200 church indebtedness, was referred by city council last night to its special standing committee for investigation and report.

City Attorney Lew Blodgett last night informed city council that officials of the Orange County Sandblasting company, 817 1-2 East Fourth, had promised to move the blasting headquarters to a new location. Residents of the district complained that the dust raised by company activities forced them to keep windows closed and otherwise inconvenienced them.

Appeal of Earle M. Hatheway, to be recognized as a used car dealer here under the old ordinance which did not require a $200 "investigation fee," was given official notice by city council last night. City Attorney Lew Blodgett, to whom the appeal had been referred, announced Hatheway has been given his license as requested, by city clerk, after affidavits were submitted, showing his ownership of the business prior to adoption of the new $200 ordinance.

CHANDLER'S STORE WINDOW FEATURES HOME 50 YEARS AGO

Today and the yesterday of 50 years ago, at a time when the city of Santa Ana was founded, are cleverly contrasted in a display which has attracted wide attention in the windows of the Chandler Furniture company at the corner of Main and Third streets.

A living room such as might have existed in the city half a century back, is furnished with the very curved horseshoe-covered sofa of that day with its accompanying rocker and cane seat, and a comfortable cane seat, and a rocker of the sort that inspired all songs about rockers from that day to this, from "Rock Me to Sleep," to "Old Rockin' Chair's Got Me."

Interesting pieces are the combined whatnot and paper-rack in one corner and the tiny melodeon with matching pin china vases set on tatted doilies on each side of the keyboard. The wire rack and hooked rug are on the floor, a popular painting, that of several call lilies, and a number of old pictures decorate the walls.

Contrasted with the "parlor" of that day is the modern living room with its furniture in simple, full lines, the design of the rug in beige and brown reflecting the lines of the chairs and tables. A chair upholstered in white leather and glass-topped coffee tables and lamps harmonizing with the rest of the furnishings, emphasize a very modern note.

The dining room of the long ago is featured by an interesting old sideboard. Two large fish, carved from black walnut, decorate one lower door, and a walnut rabbit hanging head down, the other.

A lovely old silver caster with its glass bottles, centers the sideboard which towers to an incredible height to terminate in a fruit picture. The modern dining room is furnished with a square table of modern design, chairs to match and a very modern buffet. On the floor is a rust and green rug, the colors being repeated in the attractive drapes.

Perhaps nothing in the exhibit is as amazing as the old fashioned bedroom set. The wide dresser, a commode and a bedside table all are topped with brown Italian marble. A big wardrobe stands in one corner and a gaily decorated wash bowl and pitcher of the past, completes an illusion of stepping back into the years. Brought up from the basement, the set was eagerly sought as soon as it was seen and passed into willing hands.

What belles of the long ago looked into the clear depths of the wide mirror as they dressed for parties and balls long forgotten, can only be imagined.

The modern bedroom is furnished in the same browns and beiges of the other rooms, a note of dull green and blue appearing in the rugs. Modern lines are found in the twin beds and the other furnishings.

Home Economists Say "THIS IS THE ONLY WAY TO KEEP ALL FOODS NATURALLY TASTEFUL!"

And all good cooks agree that the new air-conditioned ice refrigerator is the one sure way of preserving the natural, tasteful juices of fresh fruits, meats and vegetables.

Every day more and more housewives are discovering the many practical benefits of the scientific principles of air-conditioned ice refrigeration—benefits proved in the domestic science kitchens of home economists the country over.

For proper food preservation, cold alone is not enough, so the new ice refrigerators are air-conditioned too. They obtain for you these 4 essentials: air purification, proper humidity, air circulation and correct temperature. The constant humid cold and the clean, circulating, washed air of ice refrigeration is Nature's own way of keeping foods the way she intended them to come to your table. Salads that are fresh, crisp and watery—meats that are juicy and tender and vegetables full of their natural vitamin bearing juices are the mealtime triumphs of the housewife who preserves these foods in an ice refrigerator.

Your local Ice Service man can tell you more about the many merits of ice refrigeration and about the economy, both in first cost and in maintenance, of the new air-conditioned ice refrigerators.

From your Ice Service man also find out how conveniently you can arrange to try a new air-conditioned ice refrigerator in your own home as well as the terms on which you may purchase one, at as much as $150.00 under what you would expect to pay. Plan to ask him today—or call your local ice company.

4 WAY FOOD PROTECTION

1. Air purification eliminates gases and odors.
2. Constant, even cooling maintains correct temperature.
3. Proper humidity prevents drying out of food.
4. Air circulation revitalizes fruits and vegetables.

COACH NUNN'S RETIREMENT MAY EASE DON PROBLEM

If there was joy in some quarters of Fullerton about the appointment of a new Fullerton junior college football coach it was for a reason different than that expressed in Santa Ana.

There may have been dissatisfaction over Nunn's work at Fullerton. No coach can please everybody. But surely off his record against the Dons in the annual Santa Ana-Fullerton Thanksgiving Day pre-riot any adverse criticism was unjustified. Those here who smiled about Nunn's retirement did so mostly because what ever kind of coach the new man may be surely Roy Priebe's teams won't be any harder to handle than Nunn's. And there is a chance they will be easier.

No coach in the Eastern conference (unless it be pesky Al Claves of Citrus who seems to have an Indian-sign on his overtime room) has been tougher on Coach Bill Cook of the Dons. Nunn alone has been able to win from the Boy in Bronze oftener than he has lost. And the Cook-Nunn duels have become a late November classic that is a red letter day on Orange county's football calendar.

Nunn began at Fullerton in 1925, and only once during the intervening eight seasons did his Fullerton teams fail to win as many as they lost. All-time figures give the burly, bull-necked Yellowjackets a handsome vaudeville. His clubs won 27 games, lost 27 and tied 6 for a "batting average" of .511.

Year-by-year they performed as follows:

	Won	Lost	Tied
1925	5	2	0
1926	7	3	0
1927	4	4	0
1928	4	4	0
1929	5	2	1
1930	4	4	1
1931	4	4	1
1932	4	4	1
1933	4	4	1
1934	3	6	1
1935	5	3	1

Odds 40 To 1 Against Sam Parks In 'Open'

SPRINGFIELD, N. J., June 2.—(UP)—Sam Parks Jr. had just 48 hours left in which to wear the National Open golf crown—his diadem he had no right to win in the first place—according to the experts.

Two more suns and Parks will begin the defense of the title he astounded the golf world by winning last year at Oakland Country club. There are 169 other shot-makers, survivors of an original starting group of 1278 entries, in the field. Few of them are conceded less chance than the champion.

NET OFFICIALS 'PASS BUCK' ON ALLISON, MAKO

By Henry McElmore

(Phil Press Staff Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA, June 2.—America's ninth quest for the Davis Cup since it was snatched by the French in 1927, ended in failure yesterday, and quite a few of us are inclined to agree with Vincent Richards as to the reason why.

It is Richards' belief that the stiff shirts and the stiff backs of the American players were the main reason for our defeat.

Like most football coaches, Bill Cook does not often broadcast about his athletes until they've hit the headlines, so this is really praise from Caesar.

The Don tutor believes he has never seen a spirit finer than that of Dave Phoenix, an unsung blocking back who registers here from Newport Harbor high school.

Last week, when the Don squad went to Claremont for a regular game that concluded spring training, Phoenix and Cook got their signals crossed and Phoenix was inadvertently left without transportation.

Nothing daunted, Dave proceeded to hitch-hike to the game. He thumbed his way as far as Pomona but by that time it was 10:30 and too late for the contest, so he started home.

Luck was not so good at that hour and Phoenix had to walk all the way down Brea canyon. He arrived here at 2:30 a. m.

"That's nothing," said Phoenix when Cook and others commiserated with him when they learned of his plight. "Don't worry about me. I didn't get to play at Pomona but I'll be out there next fall."

Coach Bill Cook kinda thinks he will too. The Boy in Bronze likes football players like Dave Phoenix.

chop will be shorn of his title in this tournament, there's little doubt of that, but they can't make him lose his mental equilibrium or sense of proportion. After a year's siege of criticism the most cruel any golfer ever had to take while holding the hardest title of all to win, Parks still smiles.

"They said I was lucky to win at Oakland," Parks said. "Maybe they're right, and maybe they're not. Oakland's a year away, and here we are at Baltusrol and I'm here to play again."

Bookmakers quoted Parks a 50-1 shot in the 40th U. S. Open, starting Thursday over the historic Baltusrol course. That's the same price they offered on him in the Oakland tournament.

"I should be 100-1," said Parks. "It's twice as hard to repeat in the open as it is to win the first time. Only three golfers ever repeated, and Bobby Jones was the only one to do it twice in a row in the last 20 years. So you can see what kind of a job I have ahead of me."

TROJANS TO GET SAINT ACES

Reid, Crowther, Robinson Enter S. C. Next Fall

JAYSEE ALSO DUE TO PROFIT

Several other Pacific Coast colleges, notably the two major Oregon institutions, also will be well stocked by former Saints, it was indicated.

Beating back toward their old position atop the National football picture, the Trojans seem to be making the best catches. Three of the outstanding members of Coach Bill Foster's strong 1935 football squad are definitely pledged to Troy, it is understood. El Trojan gets both Saint tackles, Bob Reid and Jimmie Crowther, as well as the rugged center, Jack Robinson, who did the kicking for the team here last fall. Another Santa Ana, Captain Erwin Youel, left end, intends to matriculate at S. C. after a year or two in junior college here.

Southern California also will welcome Merle Morris, a Class B gridder, and Earl Aubrey, red-haired tennis star.

Santa Ana jaysee gets the biggest allotment of diploma-winners. Carroll Joy, brilliant halfback, already has entered Don ranks. Fullback Minor Nitta and Guard Jack Schilling will be along in September with "Whitey" Mann, first string right halfback, and Bill Semmacher, bespectacled end, who was a nifty pass-catcher. The trojans also secure most of Coach Clyde Cook's baseball team, including Harvey Hemphill, Bob Wilde, Harold Jesse, Art Nieblas, and Lewis Olivas. Fred Titensor, the quarter-miler, intends to become a Don and he is big enough to make a good football player. Ed Eastham, basketball star, has his eyes on Oregon State but intends to spend at least a year in Jaysee.

California lands Captain Blas Mercurio of the Saint track squad, a 6:2 high-jumper. Thus, Mercurio follows in the footsteps of another fine Saint trackman, Paul Jacques. The Golden Bears also win Billy Flood of the basketball team and Fred Pimental, tennis player and Class C sprinter as well as Saint yell-leader.

Oregon State is the choice of Harold Short, crack right end in football; Walter Opp, another fine wingman, and "Bud" Harwood, first string guard.

The University of Oregon wins Mac Beall, quarterback. Stanford will receive Don Kennedy, the best golfer in the high school's history who is the present Southern California junior champion.

Kennedy also played end in football. Center Elden Richards also will become a son of the Stanford Red, likewise Stanley Goode, Class B gridder.

Joe Crawford, a standout at guard last fall, hopes to enroll at the University of Nebraska. Dartmouth is the preference of Paul Bingle, three-year letterman in baseball.

Little Fellows Scientific Coleman and Mamanaka are two of the cleanest wrestlers that have ever appeared on the local altar. Both are fast and clever and apparently have studied the science of wrestling.

"Dirty" Dick Daviscourt is another wrestler who sometimes forgets to watch for signals and gets crossed up in his cues. He was matched with Casey Columbo and almost defeated him. But the Old "Boo" was watching and had remembered his script. After a slugging match featured with Daviscourt's special strangle holds, Columbo won in 14:35 with a body slam after the referee had signalled for the fall. The worst of it is that after the signal Columbo was the under man and Montana had to signal for a quick shift with Daviscourt losing the match.

Bill Hansen won the eye-opener in 16:28 from Vic Hill, another tough guy, with a body slam after leaping head first through the ropes. Hansen reached his high point when he threw Hill over his shoulder and out of the ring. The fact that Hill had to help by jumping did not detract from the exhibition.

Making 11 runs in the first inning, the Elks hammered out a 23-4 decision over the Latter Day Saints. Alec Clark started the slaughter with a home run in the first and the bombardment continued with the B. P. O. E. scoring one in the second and third, two in the fourth, seven in the fifth and two in the sixth. Clark got two homers, a triple and a single. Herb Bowe collected his fourth and fifth homers of the season. Fred Bell also contributed a four-pipe punch.

The 7:30 game was also one-sided, with the Commercial Bank routing the South Methodists, 10-2. Gunner Mearl Youel limited the Mustangs to six hits. Fred Cartwright toiled for the churchmen until the seventh when he retired to let Jim Haynes retire the side after homers from the willows of Larry Mitchell and Rod Smiley brought about a last inning rally of four runs.

RED BREAKS JINX

When Al Hollingsworth, Cincinnati Red pitcher, defeated Pittsburgh in the third game of the season, he accomplished something he wasn't able to do at last year, fish-peddler had fallen on evil days. Because of his loss, he was now on his back and his championship was at stake. But now—

Here was Adam Weissmuller, his manager, waving a telegram. "They got your turban," Weissmuller shouted, "they got your turban."

The news was more potent than ammunitions. Al Baba was a new man. He rose to his feet. With his chin on chest, and eyes glowing at Sexton, the grunt and groan artist returned to the ring and whaled his opponent. His comeback was good enough for the referee to declare a technical draw. But Al Baba will not forget Zionscheck.

"That Zionscheck, that president man," said the Turk today, "I weel nevald forget heez party which take my turban, my fez. That Zionscheck he no good for president. I no vote for heem."

PICO BRINGS 2 NEW HOLDS TO U. S. AND WINS

By Paul Vissman

Someone left the door open last night out at the Orange County Athletic club's Horror House and in flew a couple of dead ducks.

Referee Bull Montana identified them as Dan Juan Pico, heavy-weight wrestling champion of Mexico, and Bill Sledge. They were matched for the second half of the double main event and were in a bad spot because they followed Mitsui Hamanaka and Bob Coleman, who wrestled one hour to a fall each draw in the first half of the event.

Pico won his match in two falls, and why not? The first fall went to Pico in 15:53 minutes on a flying tackle and a body slam that left the referee helpless, helped by an elbow smash, that dazed Sledge for a moment. The Mexican took the second fall in 10:40 with a body slam after a series of flying tackles and slugs that left both wrestlers exhausted—at least that was the impression intended for the paying patrons.

The Mexican introduced two novelties to Orange county wrestling fans. He used a new toe and halfpilot hold that is a honey and really punishes when properly applied. The other novelty was new but not so nice. When Pico got excited he drools at the mouth.

Pico introduced his new hold early in the match and stamped it on Sledge who suffered, prettily and actually, for several minutes before he could break out of it. Sledge did his best (but not much) damage with a forearm-lock and a hammer-lock.

In the first and better half of the double main event Hamanaka took the first fall in 18:05 with an arm lock and half body scissors. Coleman took the second fall in 13:41 with a flying tackle, body slam and a signal from the referee. The signal however was to Hamanaka who, apparently, had forgotten that the match was to be a draw and was all set to take the second fall.

Little Fellows Scientific Coleman and Mamanaka are two of the cleanest wrestlers that have ever appeared on the local altar. Both are fast and clever and apparently have studied the science of wrestling.

"Dirty" Dick Daviscourt is another wrestler who sometimes forgets to watch for signals and gets crossed up in his cues. He was matched with Casey Columbo and almost defeated him. But the Old "Boo" was watching and had remembered his script. After a slugging match featured with Daviscourt's special strangle holds, Columbo won in 14:35 with a body slam after the referee had signalled for the fall. The worst of it is that after the signal Columbo was the under man and Montana had to signal for a quick shift with Daviscourt losing the match.

Bill Hansen won the eye-opener in 16:28 from Vic Hill, another tough guy, with a body slam after leaping head first through the ropes. Hansen reached his high point when he threw Hill over his shoulder and out of the ring. The fact that Hill had to help by jumping did not detract from the exhibition.

Making 11 runs in the first inning, the Elks hammered out a 23-4 decision over the Latter Day Saints. Alec Clark started the slaughter with a home run in the first and the bombardment continued with the B. P. O. E. scoring one in the second and third, two in the fourth, seven in the fifth and two in the sixth. Clark got two homers, a triple and a single. Herb Bowe collected his fourth and fifth homers of the season. Fred Bell also contributed a four-pipe punch.

The 7:30 game was also one-sided, with the Commercial Bank routing the South Methodists, 10-2. Gunner Mearl Youel limited the Mustangs to six hits. Fred Cartwright toiled for the churchmen until the seventh when he retired to let Jim Haynes retire the side after homers from the willows of Larry Mitchell and Rod Smiley brought about a last inning rally of four runs.

The score:

MEN STRUGGLE THRU COLD TO SCALE EVEREST

LONDON, June 2.—(UP)—A tiny group of men struggled upward today in Arctic cold, through howling winds and driving snow in a race to reach the top of the world—Mt. Everest, the majestic peak that dominates the Himalayas on the Tibetan-Indian frontier.

It was a race against time and death, against the demons who, the natives believe, were waiting on the summit to destroy any man who dares violate this last sanctuary of nature.

It was a race in which every painful step was a struggle, in which frostbite, a plunge down a precipice, pneumonia, snow blindness menaced the party.

Dispatches from India reported in fragmentary form the final assault for this year of the sixth British Everest expedition, led by the veteran Hugh Rutledge—who, because of his age, must step aside at the last moment to let two younger men try to climb the final slopes.

For months the expedition prepared for the final assault, and for weeks the members placed camp after camp on the steep, dangerous wind-swept sides of the mountain. It is humanly possible to climb Everest only for a period of a few weeks at this time of year. It is a delicate matter of choice of the right day, between the subsidence of the northwest gales and the arrival of the southwest monsoon winds from the sea which will melt the snow and start avalanches of terrific size.

The monsoon arrived dishearteningly early this year. But dispatches today there had been a lull in it and a strong northwest wind was blowing the snow from the upper levels in great sheets, to provide a surface sufficiently good for climbing.

As soon as the monsoon lull was noted, leaders ordered an immediate advance up the East Rongbuk valley glacier for the final assault on the peak.

Now the danger is twofold—first that the fierce northwest wind will continue too long, and prevent a final try because no man can live in it at the top of the peak; secondly that monsoon will start again.

It was a matter of six days or so of getting from the lowest camp, established at 18,000 feet, to the highest at about 27,800 feet.

Only two men were expected to go to the highest camp—No. 7. From there they will try to work their way up the remaining heights to the summit, now calculated by some trigonometrical calculations at 28,141 feet as against the old figure of 29,001—which, however, remains the official one.

They will have oxygen equipment to permit them to breathe. But the experience of past expeditions left no doubt that, though all their clothing and equipment is the best obtainable, they will face a test of courage and fortitude such as is provided by no formal adventure in the world except this one.

Latest reports from India are that Eric Shipton, 29, and F. S. Smythe, 35, will make the attempt this year. This is their fourth Everest expedition. They reached 28,000 feet in 1933 and could go no higher.

The story of Santa Ana, from the time it was a mustard field, down to the present, was recounted with the narrators ranging from William H. Spurgeon Jr., son of the founder of the city, who recalled his early days here, Col. S. H. Finley, who arrived in Santa Ana nine years after the founder of the city; Supervisor William C. Jerome, who came to Santa Ana when he was four years old and county treasurer T. E. Stephenson.

Ralph Smiley, reported on the recent district Rotary convention. During the introduction of guests Sam S. Peck of Honolulu, was introduced and extended an invitation to hold its convention there next year. Dr. R. Cushman, formerly of Santa Ana but now of the state hospital at Ukiah, also was present at the meeting.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENT WINS PRIZE IN REGISTER CONTEST

Fred Stearns, a student at Santa Ana High school won first prize for students in The Register's literary contest regarding "What Laws Violate Theory: Production of Wealth Benefits Society as a Whole."

In view of the fact that many one depends upon the state of production and whether all the goods produced are actually consumed. When production is cut, the general standard of living is lowered proportionately. But the fact that there are so many violations of the principle is ample evidence that it is not as obvious as it seems, and, in fact, that it is a very important subject today.

Following is Fred Stearns' article:

Re: What laws violate theory: Production of wealth benefits society as a whole?

1124 West Third street
Santa Ana, California
May 28, 1936

Editor, The Register,

Dear Sir:
At first thought, it seems obvious that "the production of wealth should be a benefit to society as a whole," and that any law violating this principle is anti-social. Of course, there are many products ordinarily beneficial which are sometimes used for unsocial purposes; for instance, automobiles kill several thousands of people each year. But we shall take it for granted, for this discussion, that the benefits of wealth far outweigh the faults.

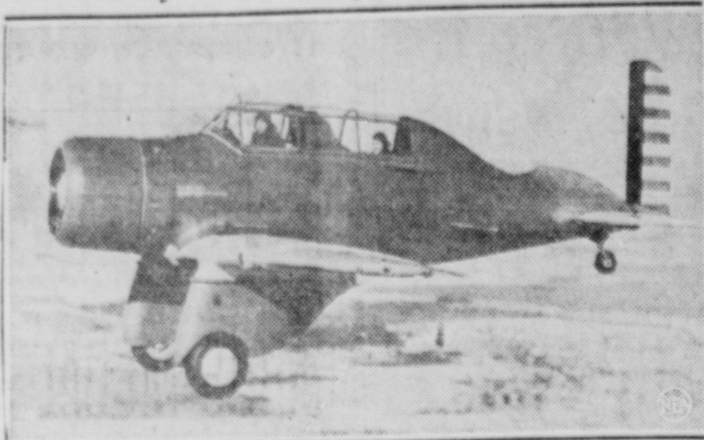

The standard of living of every-

that production will fall off in order not to create a great deal more than can be sold.

However, laws are not the only means by which production is restricted. Voluntary agreements among producers for the restraint of trade in order to keep prices high reached such a scale in the '90s that the Sherman Anti-Trust act was made necessary. Back of all efforts to restrict production—to create and maintain scarcity—is the desire to keep prices high in order to make profit—to sell goods for more than the cost of production (labor and materials). If goods cannot be sold for a profit, producers slow down their plants in order to keep prices up.

Any discussion of laws violating the theory that production of wealth is beneficial must, obviously, include all taxes on production. Even tariffs restrict production—perhaps not in the country possessing this tax, but in the exporting nations. But taxes on consumption also restrict production, by reducing the ability of the consumers to purchase. There is no earthly reason for production unless it is for consumption. As a tax discourages consumption, it naturally follows howls at "over-production." If there is enough of anything to go around, there is no good reason in maintaining prices such that only a comparative few can purchase it.

Production should be beneficial to society. It is beneficial if and when the goods become available for consumption. If they are not consumed, they might as well not have been produced, since our standard of living is not raised any by mere production alone.

Production should be planned—based upon demand. So long as we are not able to produce sufficient to satisfy our needs and desires, we obviously need to expand production. We can have available for consumption all the goods we can produce if we eliminate the search for profits, the fundamental cause of restricting production. If we do not do so, we shall continue with scarcity and high prices.

Restriction of production rests on the fallacy that the paradox of poverty in the midst of abundance has its sole solution in perpetuating poverty by abolishing abundance. All laws and other efforts to limit production, and therefore which violate the principle that "the production of wealth is a benefit to society as a whole," are merely attempts to maintain scarcity, so that profits can be made, and are therefore detrimental to the social welfare.

Brain Twizzlers

By Prof. J. D. Flint

Shades of Sherlock! A bit of tidbit from the annals of crime. Let's look it over:

Jane and Janet were loving and inseparable sisters. They had always led a life very different from the lives of most people. One day the desk sergeant of District 43 Police headquarters looked up from his work and there stood Jane and Janet. Much to his surprise Janet said, "I just killed a man!" After investigating, the police were at a loss to decide what course to take but they filed the case and in due time Jane and Janet appeared in court. After hearing the case, the judge, without further thought, had to render a verdict of "not guilty." Why was it necessary for the judge to release Janet?

4-H LEADERS SEE FIRST AID DEMONSTRATED

Instruction and detailed information concerning first aid methods to be used in any number of accidents was received Monday night by 4-H club leaders of Orange county at their regular meeting in Farm Bureau assembly hall, Santa Ana. Mr. Miller of Long Beach, connected with the Southern California Edison company, gave the talk and illustrated artificial respiration methods. He told what to do in accidents caused by electrical shock, burns, bites of insects and snakes, bleeding, broken bones, and any number of hurts that might occur on a summer trip or in the home.

The butter-fat demonstration team of the La Habra 4-H club presented their demonstration for the group. In the team are Jack Berry, Clayton Rowley and Steve Foster.

The only business transacted at the meeting was that of the summer camp plans. Members of the 4-H clubs of Orange county with their parents and families will hold a three-day camp at Rockwell, June 28 to July 1. A count was taken of the possible number to go and it seemed that at least the required 60 would attend the camp. It was voted that if possible a trained nurse should be taken on the trip for emergencies.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. G. S. Davis of Garden Grove and R. E. Launer of La Habra. No committees were appointed for the next meeting as there will be no more meetings of the council till late in August.

Battle Over Brown Estate Goes To Supreme Court

SANTA ANA MEN ON COMMITTEE FOR L. A. PLAY

Two prominent Santa Ana men are working on the general committee, in charge of "Last Days of Pompeii," to be given as a benefit for the Federated Church Brotherhood, for ten nights in the Los Angeles Coliseum, starting June 15.

They are the Reverend Walter Scott Buchanan, pastor of the Santa Ana Christian church, and George A. Fairies, 203 1/2 West Twentieth street, prominent insurance man.

The fire spectacle, according to Mr. Fairies, will climax with an eruption by Mount Vesuvius and the destruction of the pagan Pompeii. Five hundred players, he said, will be in the cast, representing citizens of the ages old town and speaking the lines of Lord Edward Bulwer-Lytton's famous story.

Funds from the event will be used by the brotherhood in establishing a mountain vacation camp for needy boys.

The Rev. Walter Scott Buchanan said hundreds of Santa Ana folks will form parties to attend the show. Tickets are selling in many of the local churches.

HARBOR SECRETARY THANKS SANTA ANA

In a communication received and filed by city council last night, Harry Welch, secretary of Newport Harbor chamber of commerce, thanked the city fathers for their assistance in bringing forward for general discussion, the matter of opening and widening South Flower street.

Thereafter, upon recommendation of the city planning commission, the city council agreed to hold a joint meeting with the city planners on June 15, to consider the Flower street question further.

Dr. E. A. Bauer Elected To State Governing Body

Word was received today of the election of Dr. E. A. Bauer, 502 South Main street, Santa Ana, to the board of governors of the National Affiliated Chiropractors of California. The election was held at the organization's convention last Saturday in Oakland.

Dr. Bauer, who returned from the convention Sunday, will attend the monthly meetings of the board of governors. This particular group is responsible for the policies of the organization, and Dr. Bauer considers his election to office one of extreme honor.

COUNCIL GETS PETITION TO RETAIN CAMP

Submitting a petition containing 113 names, W. O. Marriott, caretaker of Santa Ana's 11-acre camp grounds, a mile above Forest Home in the San Bernardino mountains, last night sought to prove to city council the desirability for continuing the camp grounds as a free outing place for this city.

It was recently suggested by Councilmen Ernest H. Layton and Plummer Bruns that it might be well to "forget" the grounds, allowing them to revert to government ownership because of "lack of interest by Santa Ana campers."

Council received and filed Marriott's petition, which approved keeping the site, Councilman Layton explaining the petition was the result of his suggestion to Marriott "to find out the sentiment of the people." "If we do wish to have a camp grounds, there probably is no place more convenient than the one we have now," Councilman Layton declared. Auditor Lloyd Banks estimated total cost of upkeep of the free camping spot at $50 annually; Banks was instructed to investigate the situation and make recommendation to council.

CONTESTANTS NOT SATISFIED WITH DIVISION

One phase of the bitter family litigation over the W. T. Brown estate at Fullerton has been ended with a superior court decree of distribution, on file today, but another phase is about to begin, with announcement that an appeal will be carried to the state supreme court.

W. Grant Brown, son of the deceased, his wife, Pansy Dawson Brown, of Fullerton, and his sisters, Mrs. Mabel R. Butler, of La Habra, and Helen Brown, of Pasadena, who have opposed administration of the estate, still are dissatisfied with the decree of distribution, and expect to appeal, according to their attorney, Stanley M. Reinhaus, of Santa Ana.

The decree of distribution issued by Superior Judge J. O. Moncur, of Plumas county, who was in Santa Ana to hear the contest of the late lumber dealer's will, outlines a plan of distribution that would apportion his $151,158.41 estate about as follows:

Mrs. Alice B. Brown, the widow, $24,846.99; (this does not include Mrs. Brown's half of the Brown and Dausser Lumber Company stock, which half would be valued at $155,225.) Mrs. Katharine McGill, daughter, of La Habra, $27,284.48; Mrs. Mabel Butler, daughter, $54,660.10; Helen Brown, daughter, $15,916.72; W. Grant Brown, son, $66,672.27; his wife, Pansy Dawson Brown, $12,605.88; Dorothy Stinchfield Pasquet, granddaughter, of Los Angeles, $30,329.56; Lorin Thurman Brown, grandson, San Bernardino, $12,684.74; William Avery Brown, grandson, Alhambra, $14,919.41.

Heirs Not Satisfied

These amounts are not stated in the court's decree, however, and are not accepted by the contesting heirs, who contend that such share in the trust estate is not subject to deductions. That issue also will be raised on appeal.

Advancements listed in Judge Moncur's decree and still charged against their heirs so named, after their share of the $16,032 residue was wiped out, were: Helen Brown $9944.66; Mabel Butler $8,515.33; W. Grant Brown $4995.55; Lorin T. Brown $727.35; Katharine M. McGill $763.80.

These advancements, if allowed, would reduce the share of these heirs in the trust fund as follows: Helen Brown $23,799.39 to $12,845.73; Mabel Butler, $11,904.43 reduced to $3389.10; Grant Brown $10,535.32 reduced to $5,631.77; Katharine McGill, $26,077.28 reduced to $25,313.48; Lorin T. Brown, $12,376.59 reduced to $11,649.24.

These same heirs, however, would, it is understood, share with the other heirs in the apportionment of the deductions made from their trust portions, so that they would not suffer the full amount of the deductions listed.

Absolve Kelley, Breiner

However, the distribution will not be made in that manner until the state supreme court has passed upon the decree.

In his decree, Judge Moncur

ANNUAL Y. M. C. A. SUMMER CAMP OPENS IN TWO WEEKS

Just two weeks from next Saturday, or June 20, according to the calendar, Santa Ana Y. M. C. A. boys will set out on their annual trip to Camp Osceola for their summer camp period.

Prospects this season are for an exceptionally full and interesting camp, according to Secretary D. H. Tibbals, who reports many inquiries and a good number of advance registrations already on hand.

The camp period will be combined with Orange, on account of the lack of available time for many individual camps this season, and for this reason it is expected that the facilities will be taxed.

The camp equipment is in the best of condition, says Tibbals, with plenty of water and wood on hand, the mountains in beautiful shape from the late rains, and many fish in the river. "Ma" Kenline will preside over the camp.

Frank Baldwin, Jack Ball, Bob Budd, Rob Drown, Allen George, Billy George, John Henderson, Jack Platt, Howard Rapp, Bruce Ragan, Stanley Slaback, Buddy Johnson, Neal Macurda and Robert L. Barrett.

absolved Arthur J. Kelley and Lester W. Breiner, officials of the Brown and Dausser Lumber company, and trustees of the estate, from the accusation that at a hearing June 24, 1935, they concealed from the court and counsel facts regarding accounts they owed the lumber company. The court was not misled, said the decree.

Kelley and Breiner have formed one of the bones of contention between the warring factions of the Brown family. The widow, Mrs. Alice B. Brown, and Mrs. McGill, have stood by them, but Helen Brown, Mrs. Butler and Mr. and Mrs. Grant Brown have protested their administration of the estate and made an unsuccessful attempt to oust them at the hearing last June.

Kelley resigned at that time, but, at Judge Moncur's invitation, accepted appointment by the court. In the decree just filed, Judge Moncur "finds" that there have been no acts of intoxication on the part of Kelley since the June court hearing.

FINLEYS PLAN FOR EASTERN VACATION

Preparing to leave on an eastern trip Thursday, Rhodes Finley, clerk in the Santa Ana court of Justice Kenneth Morrison, was on vacation today with Mrs. Morrison assuming his duties. Young Finley's father, Col. S. H. Finley, and his sister Mrs. D. M. Swarthout, will accompany him on the trip.

The trio will go by train to Monmouth, Ill., southeast of Chicago, where Col. Finley and Mrs. Swarthout, graduates of Monmouth College, will attend graduation exercises. Col. Finley became a graduate 50 years ago and will join in a special celebration. From Monmouth, young Finley will go to Flint, Mich., take delivery on a new car, return to Monmouth, and thence with his father and sister, to California, making a pleasure tour en route.

Players Form First-Night Audience For Guild's Play

Privileged to be first-nighters, 40 members of Santa Ana Community Players were guests of the Long Beach Players' Guild last night for the opening performance of that delightful comedy, "Good-Bye Again" by George Haight and Allan Scott. The play will be given every night this week, closing Saturday.

Not the least of the pleasant features of the evening was the opportunity to inspect the unique little theater, the Depot Guild House where the play was given. Atmosphere of the early days, when the building was the old Salt Lake Depot still clings to the somewhat rambling structure.

Play Review Is Presented For Stanford Club

Mona Summers Smith of Santa Ana Public library provided a delightful program for members of Stanford Women's club last night at a dinner meeting in the home of Mrs. John McDonald, Huntington Beach. This was the last event of the season for the club, whose activities will be resumed in the fall.

"Idiot's Delight," the Pulitzer prize play by Robert Sherwood, was given a comprehensive review by Mrs. Smith, who considers the play one of the most fascinating which has come into the limelight for some time. She spoke of its success as a vehicle for the talents of Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in New York.

Miss Dorothea Smith had planned the program, to which she contributed by request, a group of A. A. Milne nursery songs arranged by Fraser Simon. Miss Ruth Armstrong played her piano accompaniment.

Mrs. J. Parley Smith conducted business matters. Members made plans to compliment Stanford enrollees at a tea in the fall.

Covered-dish dinner was served to precede the program, which was attended by the hostess, Mrs. McDonald, and Mesdames J. Parley Smith, Mabel Dixon, Alice Whitaker, Merritt White, John Jacobs, Ross Shafer, Edna Dean Condon, Mona Summers Smith; the Misses Dorothea Smith, Thelma Patton, Leila Watson, Margaret Swingle and Ruth Armstrong.

Party Guests Present Gifts for Layette To Honoree

Quite charming in all its details was the layette shower at which Mrs. Floyd Blower and Mrs. Richard Hancock entertained recently in compliment to Mrs. Thomas Cone, receiving a group of close friends of their honor guest in the home of Mrs. Blower at Newport Heights.

Flower decorations used by the hostesses gave emphasis to the pink and blue colors of infancy, colors which were repeated in various details of the affair, including wrappings of prizes which rewarded Mrs. Gable Secrest and Mrs. Cone for their scores in the game of "Fifty".

For the refreshment hour, card tables were arranged with pretty linens and each was centered with a colored pottery bowl tied with pink ribbon bows and filled with pink sweet peas surrounding a slim pink taper. Pork nuptials were at each place, and cake and coffee were served with ice cream roll with stork center.

Following this interval, a pretty bassinet was wheeled into the room, filled with the gifts selected for the honoree. The bassinet itself was a gift from her husband's mother, Mrs. W. S. Pierce.

Mrs. Hancock and Mrs. Blower had as guests with Mrs. Cone, Mesdames Frank F. Quiggle, Charlotte Quiggle, A. J. Boyd, W. S. Pierce, Gable Secrest, John Secrest, Chester Doyart, Vera Van Gorkum, Gay Parks, Mildred Matthews, Russell Matthews, the Misses Bernice Boyd, Alice Boyd, Ellie Foster and this community; Mrs. Millard Boyd of San Diego; Miss Josephine Hermon of Long Beach, and Mrs. Franklin Rowe of Los Angeles.

The clown was put down on the floor. Its actions made the Tinies roar. And then they all were startled when it cried, "Why laugh at me?"

"You Tinymites look funny, too. I am no funnier than you. How would you like it if I laughed at all of you, in glee?"

"Oh, goodness sakes, don't take offense," said Goldy. "In that there's no sense. You see, we're merely tickled that you've joined our happy bunch."

"We all can play around awhile. The thought's enough to make us smile. Perhaps, if we can find some, with you we will share our lunch."

The wooden clown laughed long and loud. Said he, "Why, your head should be bowed in shame because you do not know a wooden doll can't eat."

"Not one bite will I ever take, so I can't get a tummyache. I'm luckier than you, but thank you for the offered treat."

"Now, Tinymites, I have a plan, and you must help me, if you can. All that I ask is that you make some more clowns right away."

"Please hurry, now, and turn out three. 'Twill keep you busy as can be, but I will pay you well for bringing forth more clowns to play."

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

RISE OF THE MUZHNIK

ONLY a century ago, the downtrodden Russian "muzhik," or peasant, was practically a serf, a slave to the nobility and grasping landowners. Freed of serfdom, then, he was kept in ignorance and poverty, and lived even a harder life because of his independence.

Then came the Red revolution in 1917, and the muzhik began to hope for real freedom and a happier life. But again he had to bear the brunt, this time under Communism. Under the rule of "collectivism," he had to pool his resources with those of his neighbors into vast community farms, and the greater part of his crop went to the central government. As a result, foreign observers in Russia believed that a Soviet war would cause internal revolution.

But recently Russia has begun to recognize the needs of the peasantry, to "sell itself" to the muzhik, and to build a vast second "line of defense" behind its standing army. The muzhik is rising in importance.

Russia has issued several stamps honoring the peasant. One is shown here.

She SPENT 24,000 Hours Caged Alone with JUNGLE TIGERS

For 23 years Mabel Stark has ruled supreme as the No. 1 wild animal trainer of her sex in the world—and now she is ready to surrender her dangerous job

The tigress glared at Miss Stark and snarled. Miss Stark's whip snapped. The tense moment was here. What would happen? Would she conquer or die?

By Erskine Johnson

MABEL STARK, the little blond "tiger queen" of the circus world, is making her farewell tour of the sawdust trail.

Not much longer will she thrill big top audiences by risking her life inside a cage full of snarling jungle beasts.

A headliner for 23 years, she will retire next fall to the comparatively humdrum task of managing an apartment house she owns in New York City.

"I'm 44 years old," says Mabel, "and I can't go on forever. Besides, circus pay isn't what it used to be."

"This is my last season. My act is scheduled for an 18,000-mile tour of the country this summer. Then I'm going to quit."

An amazing career will come to an end when Mabel Stark bids adieu to her ferocious cats, her whip and her gaudy military costume with its high black boots.

For 23 years she has ruled supreme as "the only woman in the world who breaks, trains and works tigers."

Braving sudden death, she has spent more than 24,000 hours, nearly three whole years, alone behind steel bars with her tigers.

Her body is pitifully polka-dotted with scars—grim reminders of countless brushes with long claws and sharp, shiny teeth.

Seasonal tours have taken her more than half a million miles—from far-flung hamlets to New York's great Madison Square Garden and back, over and over again.

Mabel Stark and one of her tigers.

She reads a great deal, favoring biographies, occasionally attends a motion picture theater "if Wallace Beery is in the show" and likes to listen to radio dance orchestras. She's a rabid fight and horse race fan, but draws the line at bridge.

Inside the arena, surrounded by the most temperamental of jungle beasts, she is an entirely different person. Always the mistress of any situation, her confidence is easily noticeable. She barks out her orders in commanding tones, cracks her whip with determination—and the tigers obey.

Actually, there is nothing mysterious or supernatural about working with tigers, she explains.

"There is no such thing as staring animals into submission," she says. "I like best to compare my work with teaching school to deaf and dumb children. It's just plain hard work."

"Like little children, the tigers have notions of their own and one must sometimes be stern and other times kind. Patience always is important—a quick move or an unkind word spoken too harshly easily can result in disaster."

Tigers learn more quickly than any other member of the animal kingdom, she says. At the same time they are the most treacherous. "There is no such thing as a tamed wild animal," says Miss Stark, and she speaks from experience.

"Teaching new tricks to veteran circus cats is the hardest part of my job," she says. "They become accustomed to certain things and, like children, it's hard to change their minds. Long hours of patient schooling in winter quarters sometimes don't even help."

"Young cats, fresh from the jungle, are the best students. They're afraid, at first, to enter the arena through the chute and it is necessary to prod them along. Once inside, with two or three other tigers already mounted on their pedestals, it is a simple—although dangerous—matter to approach one. It's another story, however, to make him retreat in the face of a whip—but half the battle is over when he does."

Teaching a tiger to perform on a revolving table, for example, requires patience plus a lot of nerve. Initiating a tiger to such a trick, Miss Stark first places him on the table, with a rope helping to keep his head pointed in the right direction. A helper turns the table by hand.

AT first the tiger just keeps running straight instead of in a circle and lands on the floor. Miss Stark keeps pushing his head inward and leans against his body. Soon he acquires the idea of turning corners and it isn't long before he races around the table with lightning speed. Later, a black stripe is painted on the table for him to follow with his eyes.

"Courage and patience, that's all tiger training requires," says Miss Stark.

Long hours spent with tigers have convinced her that these animals have a language of their own. Translating their vocal expressions, she defined five definite sounds. The cry is of hunger; the "holler" corresponds to a dog's friendly bark; anger is expressed in a deep growl; the purr, like a housecat's, is for pleasure and the hiss means that Mr. Tiger is just disgusted with the world in general.

Likewise, Miss Stark believes that tigers understand, in their own way, her words. Instead of offering food as reward for being a good little tiger, she says "good boy" or its equivalent in a low, kind voice. That, she says, means just as much to the tiger as an extra-fancy New York cut steak.

As proof of her theory, Miss Stark recalled her experience chasing two tigers that escaped from their circus pens in a small western town. Following them, she called the tigers by name. One came to her and lay down at her feet. Then the other did the same.

ATTEMPTING to break down the barrier separating the trainer from the animal, Miss Stark on many occasions has taken baby tigers into her home and raised them as she would ordinary household pets.

However, these house-trained tigers grow up and forget all about their baby ways. Miss Stark told the story of Sheikh, a tiger she took into her home and raised on a bottle as a pet. Sheikh led a two-tiger attack on Miss Stark in 1928 that nearly ended her career.

Fully grown, the tiger was working with Miss Stark in a show at Bangor, Maine. She was dripping into the arena from the big canvas top and the ground was muddy and slippery. A long train trip through the same rainstorm had left Sheikh and the other tigers in a nasty frame of mind.

The act started out uneventfully. The tigers responded obediently to Miss Stark's orders and the audience cheered as usual. Then the little blond trainer slipped in the mud and fell on her face. In a split second Sheikh leaped from his pedestal and pounced upon her fallen form. Zoo, another tiger, joined what appeared to be a horrible massacre.

Assistant trainers and helpers rushed into the cage with drawn guns and cracking whips. Sheikh and Zoo retreated. Luckily, the other tigers remained on their pedestals. Gentle hands lifted Miss Stark to her feet.

She was taken to a hospital and surgeons administered 19 deep wounds, on her back and sides and arms, everywhere almost, and re-set a broken right leg. She was in the operating room for nearly two hours. Six weeks later, after a hard-fought battle against infection, she returned to the circus aided by a cane.

Her latest injury, deep claw wounds on her left arm, occurred last September in Phoenix, Ariz., and kept her handicapped until just a short time before the start of her current season. An ordinarily docile tigress named Nellie leaped forward with a snarl as Miss Stark tripped over a stool. The animal fell upon her body and laid open her arm with its claws before showmen could drive it away.

Just in case people might think she had lost her "grip," Miss Stark faced the animal just as soon as she was able to leave her hospital bed.

Nellie entered the cage with 16 other tigers. The tigress glared at Miss Stark and snarled. Miss Stark's whip snapped. The tense moment was here. What would happen? Would she conquer or die?

Another snap of the whip. Nellie stood defiantly as though ready to spring. "Roll the ball," Miss Stark commanded with gestures. Nellie refused. The whip snapped again. A snarling growl. Again the whip. Nellie rolled the ball. Sulkily she remounted her perch. Miss Stark had conquered.

BORN in Montreal, Canada, and raised on a Kentucky farm, Miss Stark entered her dangerous profession by accident. In 1913, a graduate nurse, she went to Hollywood on a vacation and chanced to tour a film studio where a circus picture was being made. Miss Stark halted before a cage where a trainer was working with a snarling tiger.

A male companion laughed. "That's one thing you'll never do," he said. The little blond nurse smiled and said the equivalent of "Oh, yeah?"

She waited until the trainer left the cage. Then she stepped up to him. "I'd like to be an animal trainer," she said. The trainer grinned. "It takes a lot of nerve, little girl, and I'm afraid you haven't got that much."

"Let me go into the tiger's cage," she said. The trainer by this time was laughing. "That would be just plain suicide," he said. Miss Stark pleaded. Her manner was convincing. The trainer handed her his whip. The door was opened. She walked in.

The tiger stared at her and swished his tail. She cracked the whip. "Get up on your perch," she commanded, repeating the trainer. The tiger refused. Again she cracked the whip. Finally, the animal obeyed, Miss Stark said "good boy" and returned to safety outside the steel barriers.

The trainer was amazed. "I'll give you a job," he said, wiping great beads of perspiration from his face. Miss Stark beamed. "That's the biggest thrill I ever had," she said.

Next day, her nursing career forgotten, she returned to the studio and began in earnest her new-found work.

HOME BUILDING

The most vitally important things which should be given consideration in home building are that the home should be of good design and properly constructed. A poorly designed and poorly constructed home is an asset of good real estate value, while a well designed, well built house is an asset of good real estate value. Its location and environment have an incalculable influence upon the lives of its occupants. The home must be adaptable to their physical and social needs.

Today's Guest Editorial

By
Gen. A. Raymer, Secretary Orange County Tax Council.

The "Guest Editor" selects his own subject matter and it may or may not agree with the opinions of the publisher. The Register will invite and publish daily a "guest editorial" by some prominent, practical Orange county citizen.

WHY INCREASE THE COST OF LIVING BY INCREASING THE TAX LOAD

The "Sales Tax Repeal" which will be presented to the California voter this fall election, is creating much concern in the mind of the far-sighted citizen. Section II A. of the constitutional amendment if adopted will provide, "THAT ALL SALES TAXES IN ANY FORM WHICH HAVE BEEN CREATED ON BEHALF OF THE STATE OR ANY SUBORDINATE JURISDICTION SINCE THE FIRST DAY OF JANUARY, 1933, BE AND THE SAME ARE HEREBY DISCONTINUED, AND THE IMPOSITION OF ANY NEW SALES TAX IN WHATEVER DISGUISE IS HEREAFTER FORBIDDEN." The proponents of the Repeal of the Sales Tax used this "smoke screen" to foist upon the people of California the Single Tax plan.

The Single Tax idea is not new. Self-styled tax reformers have proposed single taxes of different types for hundreds of years. In fact the single tax measure was heretofore submitted to the voters of California at each general election from 1912 to 1922 and went down in defeat each time.

The Single Tax has been tried in certain foreign countries, particularly localities in Australia, New Zealand, and Canada. Wherever the idea has been adopted however, it has met with failure.

The Single Tax measure contemplates a substantial state levy on lands, for it specifically repeals that section of the Constitution limiting such a levy to 25 per cent of the state expenditure requirements. If the local property tax levies plus State property levy replace the Sales Tax were imposed on land exclusively, the tax rate would be confiscatory. At a glance one may see the effect of California lands being confiscated for taxes. All capital, whether in banks, investment concerns, insurance companies or in hands of individual investors would look askance on security for loans where land of any description became a part of the security.

Economic Consequences

A. The Repeal of the Sales Tax would necessitate the levy of a state ad valorem tax on property amounting to at least $70,000,000 annually.

B. The Repeal of the Sales Tax and the resultant levy of an ad valorem tax would destroy common property tax relief which the Riley-Stewart Tax Plan of 1933 was destined to provide.

C. The very existence of our present school system would be in jeopardy—not only the teaching staff but capital investment as well.

D. Single Tax would not only shift the tax load to the large land owner, but would reach the home of the wage earner, and of equal concern, it would prevent the present wage earner who now is looking forward to owning his own home, from attaining his goal.

E. No one can foresee the relative price increase of the products of the soil, such as fruits, grains, and vegetables, should the single tax measure become a part of the Constitution of the State of California. The added cost of living would not only be reflected in food products, but in rentals of homes, store buildings and small farms.

The vital question of the hour is, will the wage earner, the home owner and the farmer allow the Repeal of the Sales Tax to further increase his living costs and pile up his tax load?

WHY BURDEN CITRUS GROWERS?

While the untiring efforts of citrus growers in California are being continued to get an equitable freight rate, the industry raises its brows in wonderment over what basis of logic rail carriers use to charge apple growers a $1 rate to Chicago and $1.25 east of Chicago, and in the same breath demand a $1.43 rate east of Chicago from the citrus growers.

This discrimination forces the citrus industry to pay approximately 12 1/2 per cent more in rail freight rates than is charged to the apple growers.

Citrus growers of the West pay $50,000,000 annually to the carriers in freight rates and refrigeration costs. If the industry were charged a rate equal to that given to apple growers, this figure would be cut down one-eighth—a reduction of $6,250,000 yearly to citrus interests in freight rates alone. It represents a staggering figure which the citrus industry seems justified in labeling an outrageous overcharge.

The difference between the apple rate and the citrus rate to points east of Chicago represents discrimination with a capital "D."

It has been said that the rate to the apple industry has been set lower because the industry has been hard hit and cannot afford to pay more.

For that matter, the California citrus industry cannot afford to pay $1.43 per hundred pounds to have its oranges, lemons and grapefruit hauled to market. The industry believes rightfully that the rail rate should be cut to $1.25 now and eventually to $1.15 a hundredweight.

But by no stretch of the imagination can one understand why it should cost $1.43 to ship citrus and only $1.25 to ship apples over the same route.

There is no more basis for charging the citrus industry 12 1/2 per cent more than there would be for the grocer to charge you 45 cents for a pound of butter and your next door neighbor only 40 cents a pound because he thought your neighbor could less afford to pay the higher price.

This unjust freight situation seems to shine forth as another example of a tendency, also popular with our present national administration, to place a burden on production for the purpose of distributing gravy to non-production. The interests that produce excellent crops of lemons, oranges and grapefruit have come to the conclusion that the fact that the apple growers cannot pay more is no reason for making the citrus industry take up the slack by adding to the citrus freight rate.

One of these fine days the railroad interests will have a rude awakening. More than 20,000 citrus growers in Southern California have made up their minds that they will not sit back and take it on the chin from the excessive freight rates and permit Florida to walk in and grab their markets.

Unless they act quickly to make equitable adjustments, rail carriers are bound to lose a tremendous income in freight rates and to face further losses in depreciation and obsolescence of equipment.

The carriers made a rate reduction in 1923 from $1.73 to $1.55 a hundredweight at the same time increasing the minimum weight per carlot from 26,700 pounds to 36,000 pounds. Actual effect of the adjustment on the citrus growers amounted to this:

Under the 26,700 minimum at the $1.73 rate the grower paid $461.91 per carlot, and under the decreased rate of $1.55 and the increased minimum of 36,000 pounds the grower had to pay $558 which meant an increased revenue per car to the carrier of $96.09 more on each carload of oranges and grapefruit.

At present the growers are shipping under an emergency rate of $1.43 which has been effective since Oct. 1, 1933 and which rate it is rumored the carriers plan to continue until July, 1937.

The citrus growers have been pleading with the railroads for years about the freight rate. The carriers, in substance, have told the citrus industry to go jump in the lake.

The showdown is not distant. There has been a lot of talk in the past. It looks as if there would be a lot of action in the future—with the industry giving serious consideration to a plan to develop its own combination truck and water plan of transportation which in time would take over the bulk of citrus distribution at substantially lower rates.

SOUND MONEY AND BANKING

The more we study and read different students on money and banking, the more we are convinced that the two problems of banking and money have to be solved together. It seems to us that it would be impossible to have sound money permanently and permit the 14,000 banks in the country to practically coin money by the limited reserves required of the banks when they loan many times as much money as they have, by the method of creating "pen and ink check-book money."

Sound money and sound banking go together. We cannot have the one without the other.

In addition to sound banking, in order to have sound money, monopolies must be eliminated, both in capital and labor. When they are permitted, sooner or later, those who have the monopoly appropriate more to themselves than is produced. It is then necessary to change the money prices by inflation, in order to break the deadlock and leave enough to those who are not protected by monopoly to make it worth their effort to try to produce.

In order to have sound money, the government must discontinue its attempt to discriminate in its method of taxation. It must tax like any other mutual organization, in proportion to the cost that each citizen is to the government and the rule must be uniform.

Sound money, sound taxation, sound banking and elimination of monopolies are what we need to produce enough jobs so that every worker may have many jobs from which to choose, rather than be obliged to take the job he can get.

GIVING JOBS

Any time any employer begins to give a job to somebody because he needs it, he begins to get in trouble. No job should be given. There should be an exchange, a trade. The employer should trade his energy and ability to produce for the food, shelter and indulgence the employer advances. Both parties should be benefited in the trade, or it will not be continuous. When one party ceases to benefit, it ceases to be business but becomes emotion and charity, which eventually leads to more and more unemployment.

When anyone desires work, he should never ask for a job to be given to him. He should be able to persuade the employer that what he has to trade—his services—is worth more to the employer than the employer will have to pay him.

When the employee is given a job, if he does not give equal value in return in production, he pays in worry, fear and loss of self-respect and society is the loser because it brings about an unnatural relation that, sooner or later, results in envy and hate.

Let every employer and employee relation be one that is mutually beneficial to both parties; one that is a fair trade. Then, we will have progress and development and production and a happy prosperous country.

One cannot be a friend without having one.

Worth Two In The Bush

Day By Day In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright, 1935)

WASHINGTON, June 2.—Senator Borah's radio speech will rank as the most important utterance made by anybody on the Republican or Democratic side during this pre-convention campaign.

Those who are accustomed to look for personalities and not principles, expected Mr. Borah to denounce Governor Landon or to announce a bolt from the ticket if the Kansas governor were nominated, missed the whole point of the senator's extraordinary effort to shape the destinies of his party at the most critical moment of its history.

What Senator Borah said, in effect, was this:

First, platforms are important but candidates are more important.

Second, conventions and whom they nominate are important but what the candidates themselves say after they are nominated is more important.

This means merely that, when the Cleveland convention is over, Senator Borah will reserve the right to examine the speeches of the nominee and determine for himself whether the issues are being in conformity with the principles believed by the Idaho senator to be paramount. If they are not, Mr. Borah will not support—because he cannot in conscience support—such a nominee. Neither will he support Mr. Roosevelt, whose policies are diametrically opposed to what Senator Borah believes.

In other words, if the next Republican nominee wants Mr. Borah to campaign for him, he must adopt the basic idea for which the Idaho senator stands. And Mr. Borah, moreover, believes as he did in 1932—when, in the same manner, he refrained from supporting Mr. Hoover—that anybody who deviates from the anti-monopoly doctrine in 1936 is doomed to defeat and that likewise the Republican party may be doomed to extinction.

Now, what is this anti-monopoly doctrine and who disagrees with Mr. Borah about it? Unfortunately, in the short space of a 30-minute address over the radio, it was not possible to furnish all the background of the controversy nor to outline its implications. But, in a nutshell, Mr. Borah feels that concentrated economic power is just as bad as concentrated governmental power, and he might have added, a merger of the two means the destruction of all liberty of opportunity and brings fascism.

It is true that Mr. Borah made general accusations as to the existence of monopoly which would have to be proved in court. Merit is a basic feature of monopoly, and when big and little units in business get together to fix prices—or to "stabilize" them, as the more fashionable phrase has it—there is danger to the system of individualism which Mr. Borah regards as essential to economic recovery.

There are some business men who want price-fixing—as, for instance, some of the coal operators. There are price-fixing advocates in the oil industry. To agree with your competition is often easier than to fight your competition. The Roosevelt administration, which has virtually abandoned the Sherman anti-trust laws, has shown signs of developing the cartel or monopoly system along the lines of the Hitler and Mussolini economic policies. Mr. Borah sees this coming and wants the Republican nominee to fight it tooth and nail. He regards it as so important that, if the Republican nominee pussyfoots or straddles or submerges the issue and tries to carry water on both shoulders, Mr. Borah will not have his heart in the campaign nor his voice.

But can a man like Governor Landon espouse the Borah doctrine? As an independent oil man, he knows what it is to fight larger units. Also he can accept, if he wishes, in its entirety the economic philosophy of a business leader like Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, whose outstanding speeches last week are completely consistent with the anti-monopoly doctrine of the Idaho senator. In fact, they constitute perhaps a more detailed explanation of honest competition's advantages to the masses of consumers than was possible in Mr. Borah's discussion of the subject, which was largely from the viewpoint of governmental policy instead of economic evolution.

This correspondent has always disagreed with Mr. Borah on his foreign policy and believes that the senator is overlooking the fact that fascism and monopoly and price-fixing all arise out of the consequences of domestic isolation or self-containment, which makes regimentation and rationing or production and employment inevitable. International cooperation, on the other hand, whether through the League of Nations or any other device of diplomatic usefulness that can assure us against war, means enlargement of trade and markets and gives stimulus to the competitive system.

Notwithstanding this paradox in Mr. Borah's reasoning, the speech is a challenge to the monopoly issue which the Democratic as well as the Republican party must meet, and on the exposition of the problem during the campaign, the translation of what it means to the average man by way of future opportunity and future jobs, will depend victory or defeat.

November for the nominee of either the Cleveland or the Philadelphia convention.

We were eating breakfast and ma said, Well, I had the hardihood to look in the mirror this morning, but thank goodness I still have only one gray hair.

Probably that particular hair had an unjustified inferiority complex and deserved its fate, pop said. It might even be a good lesson for the other hairs, so I'll make stop worrying about it, he said, and ma said, It's something to worry about, I assure you. Even a straw shows the way the wind blows, so what must a gray hair show?

It must show the way the straw blows, pop said, and ma said, I could hardly sleep last night wondering whether I awt to dye my hair or not in case I get whole streams of gray the way some wimmin get, what do you think, Willyum?

Speaking of hypothetical questions, well do you think would be more advisable for a sore toe, to cut a hole in my shoe or wear a soft slipper? pop said, and ma said, What did you do to your toe, you can't be too careful about a thing like that.

My toe was never better, but I mean just in case I happen to cut it or something, pop said, and ma said, Now Willyum you can't fool me, you must of hurt your toe in some manner, nobody brings a sore toe out of a blue sky. Let me take a look at it, she said.

Yee gods will you get off my toe, I tell you I was just trying to show you the uselessness of asking hypothetical questions, pop said, and ma said, And I tell you I don't believe a word you're saying and I insist on seeing that toe, right or wrong.

And she took pop's shoes and socks off herself and all his toes were perfect, and he asked her what would be the best thing to do in case a barber accidentally cut off half his mustash, whether to cut the 2nd half off too or temporarily paint the first half while he was waiting for it to grow back.

Being another hypothetical question.

Attention is called to the fact that graves of the Confederate dead in Santa Ana cemetery will be decorated tomorrow under supervision of Camp Hi Bledsoe, United Confederate Veterans. All those having flowers to be used for the rites are requested to have them at the cemetery by 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Desiring to aid ladies of the Elbel club in their laudable enterprise of establishing a day nursery in Santa Ana, The Register has made investigations as to the social and economic value of such an institution and local conditions contributing to its usefulness. One conclusion is that the experiment is well worth trying and gives promise of success. The Register will receive and acknowledge donations of money and furnishings. We owe it to the Elbel ladies to help them give this good work a fair trial.

Thoughts On Modern Life

PRODUCTION FOR USE

We are hearing a great deal just now about production for use as against production for profit. We are likely to hear more of this.

As I stated some months ago, when the suicidal fallacy of seeking prosperity through scarcity has run its futile course, it is by no means certain that the reaction will be an articulate and informed demand for a workable economics of plenty. It is more likely to be an uncritical mass reaction that, since Rooseveltian liberalism has failed to make available to the masses the plenty that is possible, the whole underlying system of American enterprise must be obsolete, and that, therefore, we must frankly junk the whole idea of production for profit and go boldly over to a production-for-use economy.

It is important to realize how shallow an over-simplification most of the current talk about production for use is.

The easy assumption of the radical reformer is that production for profit makes it impossible for industry to produce for use in the sense of spreading the fruits of modern enterprise widely over the masses.

On the contrary, the fact is that, in this mass production age, the industrialist who does not produce for use fails to produce for profit. Profit and use are not incompatible in a mass production age. High quality, low prices, short hours, and high wages is the formula by which alone mass consumption can be realized in an economy of private enterprise with lavish productive capacity.

The first law of great business leadership in this generation is to provide for mass consumption. And mass consumption can mean, alongside its lifting of the mass living standard, greater total profits at a narrow profit margin per article or transaction.

This is the "production for use" that we want.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

HOLIDAY VISITING

Now that vacation is on the way it is time to consider the visit to Aunt Hattie, or to the farm, or camp. A visit helps children in many ways. A separation from home and family can be an inspiring experience that will carry through many months of the following year. All we need consider is the responsibility of those to whom the children go for the visit. That is extremely important to our purpose and should be guaranteed by personal knowledge of the people and the place and the program.

Children need to get away from home. They become so accustomed to the people about them, to the privileges they enjoy, to the responsibilities that are theirs. They learn too hard on home and lose any notion they might have about standing on their own feet and going ahead on their own power. A period among strangers—and even close relatives are strangers to family ways—opens the children's minds to experiences they do not have at home. Children can be conditioned to home and family as to become unconscious of them. The summer visit awakens them to values they have overlooked.

Mothers are too much given to thinking, "Nobody will be on hand to see that they get their orange juice fresh, first thing in the morning. Nobody will see that he gets to bed on time. I'm the only one who understands his behavior. He has never been away from me a single day since he was born. Maybe he would fall ill. Perhaps he would be a bother. He really doesn't want to go."

He and she need to go. Prepare them for a visit, take a deep interest in their clothes, their play outfits, talk about the good times ahead and let them see that you think their going is a fine thing for them. Send them along cheerfully and prepare to enjoy as best you may relief from the routine their presence imposes. Take time out for yourself and do some of the things you have been wanting to do.

If it seems good to you, exchange children with friends. That helps to dispel the loneliness, fills your day again. And you will learn that your own children are not so much worse than others. These children will do about the same things your own do after a few days of acquaintance begins to wear off the newness. You will find many things to make you happier in your own children, and perhaps a few to make you determine to correct some of their habits that, in the light of your visitors' behavior, are not as good as they might be.

The experience of a visit among strangers yields a richer return than might appear on the surface. Many a child has returned to his home and family with new power, more self-assurance, better attitudes, more appreciation and sympathy than ever he had before. Not that the home or the camp he visited was so much superior to his home, but that they lighted up the home picture so that this child saw it as he had never seen it before. Not that this strange place was administered in better style, but that its administration shed light on home ways, to the advantage of home.

Association with strange children brings out personal strengths because opposition, resistance, cooperation and unity bring out strong personal traits. A summer visit is truly worth a trial.
